BRITAIN WORKS FOR CREDITS TO BUY IN AMERICA

Barred Now Under Johnson Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Evidence is mounting in official sources here that Great Britain is at work along various propaganda avenues to have the United States help to finance its latest war.

The stumbling block in the British path is the Johnson act, sponsored by Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.] which forbids the floating of loans by nations whose existing debts are in default.

And Great Britain owes the United States from the last war a total of $5,619,740,144, enough to keep the free spending New Deal operating for more than a half year.

British Create Sentiment.

However, reports indicate that the British are busy creating sentiment in agriculture, mining, and industry for repeal or modification of the Johnson act so that United States dollars can once more flow into the allies' war chest.

[A story of Washington administration activities prior to the outbreak of the war, including a scheme of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. to prevent hostilities by buying up war materials, will be found on page 25.]

May Pay Some on Debt.

The British are even considering paying a portion of the old war debt—so long as they can borrow the money from Uncle Sam to do it and get more to keep the present war pot boiling.

The first British moves toward building up sentiment here for extention of credits were taken in the field of agriculture, probably because the war came in the harvest season.

Within a few weeks of the outbreak of the war, it was announced that no fruits would be purchased in the United States. It was said that money would not be spent on fruits so that it could go toward purchase of more essential foodstuffs and what fruits would be purchased would be bought in the colonies.

Apple Growers Stirred.

The reaction among American fruit growers, particularly apple growers, was immediate. Britain is the best foreign fruit customer. Growers appealed to Washington to consider their plight and help them get rid of surpluses. In various ways fruit men were told that if Britain had credits purchases would continue at virtually the normal level.

Other farmers and live stock producers learned that Britain proposed to make no more purchases in this country than would be absolutely necessary. In Britain's war Britain's pounds would go to British pockets in various colonies wherever possible, it was said. Again the hint was dropped that things could not be as they were in the last war bebcause early in that conflict Britain could get dollars.

The cotton growers, particularly the small producers, were given to understand Britain has all the cotton she can use at present and enough to carry her along until next July. Official reports here indicate that England is not as well off as she would have the world believe and that her stores can last no longer than April.

Credits An Issue In Congress.

Official observers of the campaign assert that it indicates that the question of extention of credits will be an issue in congress.

In the heated debate on neutrality revision at the special session of congress, foes of the administration's arms embargo program declared that ending of arms would be followed by the sending of credits, and later the sending of soldiers to Europe.

The revision program, as presented to congress by President Roosevelt, contained a provision for 90 day credits to belligerents. This was killed.

Forbbidden to Make Loans.

As the act now stands the sale, purchase, or exchange in this country of bonds, securities or obligations of belligerents is prohibited and citizens are forbidden to make loans or extend credit to any belligerent.

The question of debt settlement is not entirely dead. Last June Lord Lothian was named ambassador to the United States. Lothian is considered that the debt question must be settled to make the hands across the sea meet in a friendly clasp. It was reported he had won Neville Chamberlain to his way of thinking.

Finns Smash Series of Red Attacks

Light German Cruiser Sunk by British Sub

LONDON, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—The British admiralty announced today his majesty's submarine Ursula "reports she sank one Koln class cruiser at the mouth of the Elbe Thursday." The admiralty communique added:

"The cruiser was screened by six destroyers."

Further details of the naval attack—linked with a heavy air attack on German naval bases—were not immediately forthcoming.

Battle Reported Thursday.

The admiralty announced Thursday a German cruiser had been torpedoed and a German submarine sunk by the same British submarine said to have refrained from attacking the German liner Bremen on her homeward trip last week from Murmansk, soviet Russia.

[The German high command acknowledged then that there had been "an undetermined explosion near one light cruiser," but called the damage "unimportant."]

[Neither communique on Thursday identified the warship, and the British announcement did not indicate it had been sunk.]

Tonnage of Boat 6,000.

Germany has three cruisers of the Koln class—the Koln, Koenigsberg, and Karlsruhe—all 6,000-ton warships with normal complements of 571 men each.

All are capable of 32 knots and carry nine 5.9-inch guns, 12 21-inch torpedo tubes, six 3.5-inch anti-aircraft guns and lighter weapons, as well as two airplanes each.

Hamburg, German seaport, is near the mouth of the Elbe river, which empties into Helgoland bay on Germany's north coast.

Stove Factory Worker Tells C.I.O. Terror

Charges of C. I. O. labor terrorism among workers in the plant of the American Stove company, 157th street and Commercial avenue in Harvey, were made yesterday by Charles Siebelt, a furnace foreman in the plant.

Siebelt, a leader among the 150 of the company's 600 workers who have refused to join the C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing committee at the demands of its organizers, was attacked and beaten severely as he left the plant after midnight last Friday night. While in a half conscious condition from the beating, he was forced to sign a membership card in the union, he said.

Beatings Frequent, He Charges.

Beatings and other acts of violence have become frequent at the plant in recent months as the S. W. O. C. pushed its drive to organize all the workers, Siebelt said. Four hundred and fifty employés already have joined the union, many thru fear, he asserted. Those who have refused have been threatened, he said.

Officials of the stove works, which is the G. M. Clark division of the American Stove company, said yesterday that they probably would demand police protection for their nonunion employés as a result of the violence Friday night. They declared that they had negotiated a contract with the S. W. O. C. two years ago. This contract, they said, named the union as the bargaining agent for union workers, but provided specifically that the union should not intimidate nonunion employés.

Tells Story of Attack.

Siebelt told this story of the attack:

"I finished work Friday night at 12:30 a. m., half an hour after most of the other workers on the night shift had left the plant. I walked out to the parking lot, opened the steel gates, then went back to drive my car out and home. As I walked back to the car a dozen union employés and sympathizers came thru the gates and stopped me.

"They demanded that I join the union. I told them that I was an American, and had the rights of an American, and that for personal reasons I didn't believe in the C. I. O.

"With that, two or three of the fellows jumped me. One cut my cheek, another hit me in the eye, and then somebody hit me over the head with some kind of a padded club, maybe a blackjack. I went down, and that's all I remember. Another worker in the plant, also a nonunion man, saw the attack from a distance. He told me later that the fellows dragged me to my feet and, while I was still almost unconscious, forced me to sign a membership card.

"I drove home in a daze, and the first thing that I knew was when the doctor called by my wife brought me back to consciousness about 45 minutes later."

Bert Krogh, president of the S. W. O. C. at the stove plant, denied last night that his union was in any way responsible for the attack on Siebelt.

Siebelt said he will ask company officials today for permission to go thru all the shops and departments in an effort to identify the union members who took part in the attack.

Husband Slain; Quiz Bride on Tragic Journey

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 17 [Special].—A bride of four months, who came to her mother's home here and was told that she was a widow, was questioned by police tonight about the mysterious slaying of her young husband in Missouri last night.

The widowed bride, Mrs. Ruth Hopper Phillips Ramsey, 29 years old, a former beauty operator, told police her husband, George C. Ramsey, 27, of Olney, Ill., left her sitting in the Union station in Kansas City at 8:15 o'clock last night, saying he was going for a short walk. His body was found in Independence, Mo., today.

Mrs. Ramsey told the police who questioned her here that when a Texas train for which they had tickets departed at 11:10 o'clock last night, she believed her missing husband had deserted her. Having only $9 she boarded a bus for Evansville at 11:45 o'clock and arrived here at 2:30 this afternoon.

Had Worked in Olney.

She had been in the home of her mother, Mrs. Edna Hopper, only 30 minutes when Ramsey's stepfather, Samuel Hamilton, an Olney policeman, telephoned news of the slaying.

Mrs. Ramsey said her husband worked in a shoe factory in Olney before they were married, and more recently for a pipeline construction company. She said he told her repeatedly that some one was trying to harm him, and finally decided to go to Texas in search of work. He gave her no clew to the source of the threats against him.

$50 Still in Pockets.

An examination of Ramsey's body, which was found in a coal yard in Independence, a suburb of Kansas City, disclosed two holes in his skull, apparently made with a mechanic's hammer. His chest was injured.

Ramsey's pockets contained $50, two railroad tickets for travel from St. Louis to Dalhart, Tex., and three baggage checks. His watch still was on his wrist. Police believe he had been dead 12 hours when the body was found.

They discounted a robbery theory because the $50 remained in the victim's pocket. Ramsey had $100 when he and his bride left Olney yesterday morning, relatives asserted.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE MANNERHEIM LINE IN SOUTHEASTERN FINLAND, Dec. 17.—From the huge reserves they have concentrated on the Karelian isthmus northwest of Leningrad, soviet Russian army leaders today continued to throw forward fresh troops against the Finnish defenses, altho the Reds have made no progress on this front since Dec. 6.

The Finnish lines, which have been under continuous artillery fire since Thursday, held firm, and the attacks were repulsed.

The most determined attacks, supported by extremely heavy artillery fire, again were made along the Taipale river where more tanks were destroyed, bringing the total for the last two days to 30. These included three 30 ton tanks which the Finns destroyed when the "land battleships" became impaled on the Finnish tank defenses on the western Karelian isthmus.

Mowed Down on Ice.

The Russians also made an unsuccessful attempt to cross the frozen surface of Lake Suvanto. There another Russian battalion was destroyed, mowed down by machine gun fire when the troops were on the ice in the middle of the lake.

The Finnish general staff further reported that Finnish forces were pushing back the Russians in other sections north of Lake Ladoga. After the disastrous defeat of Tolvajarvi 45 miles north of the lake, where they lost much of their equipment, the Russians are making a stand at Aeglaejarvi, having retreated 16 miles in one day.

The Finnish communique said, "Our own advance continued slowly. Fierce fighting took place all day in the area of Aeglaejarvi."

[A dispatch reaching Stockholm reported that a Finnish commander of the eastern front said two Russian forces, each of about 10,000 men, were surrounded in the vicinities of Suomussalmi and Tolvajarvi. Suomussalmi is about 200 miles north of Tolvajarvi.]

Wreck Motorized Column.

At Loimola, 30 miles south of Aeglaejarvi, two more enemy battalions were decimated and dispersed by the Finns.

Further fierce fighting was reported in the vicinity of Pitkaranta, on the northeastern shore of Lake Ladoga, where an improvised Finnish gunboat, on which field artillery had been mounted, destroyed three tanks and smashed an enemy motorized column.

In the far northern Finland, where the temperature was 13 degrees below zero, the Finns were reported busy fortifying their positions near the nickel mining town of Salmijarvi. The Reds were reported to have faltered before these fortifications, which also are protected by Lake Salmi.

Salmijarvi is 20 miles south of Petsamo, Finnish Arctic outlet, which the Russians now hold. Soviet planes from Murmansk were reported cooperating with the Red troops and bombed Salmijarvi during the day.

Aided by Norwegians.

It was reported that many Norwegians, living at Kirkkoniemi, just across the frontier in Norway on the other side of the Paata river, have come to the aid of the Finns, for if Salmijarvi falls, soviet Russia will have established a direct frontier with Norway.

[A Stockholm dispatch quoted a Finnish commander as saying the Finns were convinced that the Russian tanks which recently attacked

PIECE TOGETHER STORY OF BATTLE OFF MONTEVIDEO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 17.—The sea epic that ended tonight when her own crew sent the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee to the bottom of the Plate river three miles off Montevideo harbor began at 6 o'clock last Wednesday morning.

The epic opened with a dramatic running sea battle that lasted 14 hours as three British cruisers—the Exeter, Ajax, and Achilles—closing with the tenacity of hounds upon a stag, slashed away at the German commerce raider over a course of 200 miles down the Uruguayan coast.

It saw the badly battered Graf Spee slip under cover of darkness Wednesday night into sanctuary in Montevideo harbor, where she showed 14 gaping holes in her armor plate, and announced her battle toll of 36 dead and 60 wounded.

Work to Patch Holes.

It continued thru three tense days and into a fourth as the German crew feverishly worked to patch the battle scarred warship for another test against the reenforced British and French death watch lurking outside the harbor.

It ended when the crew of the Graf Spee, acting on orders of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, blew up the ship rather than let her and the secrets of her construction fall into the hands of Germany's enemies.

The full story of the battle has not yet been told, but from facts available it was possible here tonight to piece together what appeared to be an authentic description.

A Gray Ghost on the Sea.

For weeks the Graf Spee had cruised like a gray ghost over Atlantic waters, turning up from nowhere to sink enemy merchantmen. When she finally reached the neutral harbor at Montevideo she carried with her 62 officers and men from nine British freighters which she had sunk since Sept. 30.

Soon after daylight Wednesday a British warship made its first contact with the Graf Spee since she started raiding the Atlantic sea lanes. The cruiser Ajax, which had been patrolling the waters off the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul, was convoying the French merchantman Formose from Brazil to Uruguay when the raider chanced upon them.

The Graf Spee rushed to the attack, unaware that the Achilles, of the same class as the Ajax, and Exeter, a larger cruiser, were in the same waters. The Ajax radioed for help and then blasted away at the pocket battleship with her 6 inch guns, resorting to superior speed to keep clear of the 11 inch guns of its adversary.

Rush to the Scene.

The Achilles and the Exeter, armed with 8 inch guns and commanded by Commodore H. H. Harwood, who took charge of the action for the British, reached the scene with surprising speed and the German raider found herself engaged in a combat with three British men of war.

All the British vessels are faster than the Graf Spee, which was rated at 26 knots. The Exeter has a maximum speed of 32 knots and the Ajax and Achilles of 32.5 knots.

From 6 a. m. until 10 a. m., while all four warships ran southward and the Formose did her best to stay clear, the battle raged. Despite the Graf Spee's mobility and heavier armament, she was hit repeatedly by shells from the British cruisers.

The Germans concentrated their efforts on putting the Exeter out of commission. Meanwhile the Ajax was laying a heavy smoke screen. This enabled Capt. Jacques Buron of the Formose to maneuver his ship out of the fighting zone. The three British cruisers, meantime, crept thru the screen within firing range of the Graf Spee. After every volley they retreated quickly.

Exeter Is Damaged.

The German guns, however, were finding their mark. Savage fire carried away most of the superstructure of the Exeter, and 61 aboard her were killed. She finally was forced to quit the battle.

Six times during the morning the British ships closed in on the Graf Spee. Meanwhile her commander, Capt. Hans Langsdorff, was heading for the port of Montevideo, up the Plate river.

Intermittently all thru the day the bitter fight went on. Word reached

Berlin Decrees Sinking

BERLIN, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—Adolf Hitler gave the order to blow up and destroy the raiding pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, it was announced early today by D. N. B., official German news agency. In an earlier communique issued shortly after the Graf Spee was sunk D. N. B. charged that Uruguay refused to give the necessary time to make the Graf Spee seaworthy. D. N. B. said the German minister to Uruguay protested the act as a "flagrant breach of international law."

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 17 (AP).—Proud and powerful marauder of the high seas, the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was blown up and sunk tonight to save her from defeat and destruction at the point of British naval guns.

Capt. Hans Langsdorff and every member of the crew which went out to scuttle the Graf Spee were reported by officials to have reached safety aboard other boats before the 10,000 ton war monster, her hull shattered and her wreckage aflame from the explosions of internal mines, sank in 25 feet of water three miles from shore, within sight of the city.

Captain of Freighter Seized.

The German freighter Tacoma, carrying two or three hundred members of the crew, anchored in Montevideo harbor late tonight. The captain immediately was arrested for violating a port closing order earlier in the day, and Uruguayan authorities said they would intern all Graf Spee crewmen who remained in Uruguayan waters.

The others in the crew—about 700 men—were reported en route to Buenos Aires aboard tugs and launches. They will surrender to the Argentine government. Capt. Langsdorff and other ship's officers also were reported headed for Buenos Aires aboard a Graf Spee launch.

Captain Is Bitter.

Langsdorff, last to leave his ship, sent a bitter wireless ashore from the bridge before he gave the order to abandon ship, protesting that Uruguay's refusal to let the Graf Spee remain in the harbor later than this evening left him no alternative than to sink the ship near the coast and save the crew.

The alternatives he refused were to resume the battle with British warships outside the harbor from which he fled last Wednesday night, his ship split by British shells, or to let his ship be interned for the rest of the war.

The pocket battleship, which had sunk at least nine British freighters in far ranging raids, was blown up less than two hours after she had steamed slowly away from her anchorage and headed south out of Montevideo harbor.

Goes Down with the Sun.

All Montevideo saw or heard her blown up, just as the sun was dipping beneath the horizon. She was on the bottom within 3 minutes after the blast thundered across the harbor.

Members of the crew tumbled over the side into a small fleet of rescue tugs and barges and pulled away to safety a short time before the first explosion.

As a sunset haze drifted in from the sea, about to hide the Graf Spee both from shore and from the British warships waiting below the horizon, the first powerful blast shattered the battleship, sending flame and smoke leaping into the air. Two other explosions then rumbled across the water.

Sinks as They Watch.

For a moment the thousands on shore thought a second naval battle had begun. But as they watched, the Graf Spee settled and sank, her superstructure showing above the surface.

A little more than half an hour later, as a pillar of fire and black smoke plumed upward from the wreckage, a second series of blasts ripped even this away and the ship sank from view. These new blasts apparently came when flames reached munitions and fuel untouched by the first explosions.

The Graf Spee first moved out of the harbor limits as though headed directly for the British blockaders. Then, when three miles offshore, she went hard to starboard and headed south. Watchers saw the Tacoma follow the same course.

GRAF SPEE SUNK BY GERMANS ON HITLER'S ORDER

Flames Sweep Over Ship After Explosions.

The warship moved slowly for a time, then appeared to anchor as a pair of tugs from Buenos Aires drew up to her side, one of them drawing a barge.

Through a telescope supplies were seen being loaded onto the barge. Within a few minutes, sailors aboard the Graf Spee climbed from the warship into the smaller boats.

Captain Operates Mines.

Occupants of a nearby pilot boat said that as the boats drew away Capt. Langsdorff carried a light cable attached to a mine deep in the ship's hull. The small boats were nearly a mile away when the first explosion shook the warship.

The captain himself operated the first mine, occupants of the pilot boat declared. Reports here which could not be confirmed said that Langsdorff talked to Hitler himself by telephone today and was told to destroy his ship just as the German crews sent their surrendered fleet to the bottom at Scapa Flow, after the last war.

[The German fleet of 72 interned warships was scuttled at Scapa Flow, British naval base in the Orkney Islands, on June 21, 1919.]

The Graf Spee went to her self-chosen grave with the Nazi swastika flying proudly from her mast. She sailed at 6 p. m. [3:30 p. m. Chicago time] and was scuttled at 7:28 p. m. [4:58 p. m. Chicago time].

Rests Solidly on Bottom.

A two hour launch trip around the sunken ship close to midnight revealed she was resting solidly on the bottom in an upright position. Parts of her again visible because of an ebbing tide, the ship looked as if she were broken almost in two.

Heat had warped sections of the prow, but guns, turrets, and stacks were in position. The hull remained a glowing furnace of all shades, and for 1,000 meters around the vessel the odor of burned fuel oil was almost overpowering.

Official sources said Germany had made a formal protest to Uruguay because of its refusal to let the Graf Spee stay here longer.

Uruguayan naval and port authorities started an immediate investigation of the explosions which scuttled the Graf Spee. They occurred well within the Plate river waters, over which this country claims jurisdiction.

In Path of Small Boats.

Pilots ashore said the German crew sank the Graf Spee directly in the path which is taken by shallow draft boats between Montevideo and Buenos Aires.

At least three British cruisers and, presumably, the French battleship Dunkerque, remained well outside the harbor, invisible from port, during tonight's brief drama. Five British planes dipped over the Graf Spee as she maneuvered toward her grave but made no hostile maneuvers.

The Graf Spee ended her career after participating in the first major sea battle of the war off Uruguayan shores four days ago, in which she lost 36 dead and inflicted a death toll of 72 men on her three British antagonists, the cruisers Exeter, Achilles, and Ajax.

Shortly before the Graf Spee had sailed forth to self-destruction, Foreign Minister Alberto Guani of Uruguay, who has borne the brunt of the heavy burden of trying to defend Pan-America's 300 mile neutral belt against further incursions by fighting craft, received a formal call from diplomatic representatives of his sister American nations. They expressed their full support of Uruguay's stand in limiting the German ship's stay in Montevideo.

Battle of Diplomacy.

Since the Graf Spee put in here Great Britain had exerted strong diplomatic pressure to have the pocket battleship ejected or interned. Germany's envoy, on the other hand, had insisted up to the last on extension of her stay. He lost.

Uruguay today suggested that members of the Pan-American conference make representations to Britain and Germany protesting against their warships' battle within the American neutrality zone. The suggestion was made in a note to Panama's minister of foreign affairs, Narcisco Garay, in conformance with machinery set up at the Pan-American neutrality conference on Oct. 3. Panama was designated as the liaison point on any action by American nations.

Germans Scuttle Pocket Battleship

On orders from Adolf Hitler, the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was scuttled last evening off the shore at Montevideo, to escape waiting warships after it had been driven into harbor there in a sea battle. The three British cruisers and a French battleship indicated by the artist are known to have been waiting, out of sight of land, but their position with respect to the shore or to one another is not known.

LOSS OF SPEE CUTS GERMAN NAVY DOWN TO FOUR CAPITAL SHIPS

Loss of the 10,000 ton pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee reduces the German navy to four warships of the capital class. They are the pocket battleships Admiral Scheer and Deutschland, and the new battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst.

The Graf Spee was launched June 30, 1934. The Deutschland was commissioned May 19, 1931, and the Admiral Scheer April 1, 1933. The Graf Spee, the Deutschland, and the Scheer were alike in construction and armament. They had a speed of 26 knots, carried 926 men, and were 609 feet long. They were armored with from one to seven inches of plate, had a cruising range of 16,000 miles, and carried six 11 inch guns, eight 5.9 inch guns, and eight torpedo tubes. They could fire a main battery broadside of 4,020 pounds.

The Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, commissioned in 1938, are of 26,000 tons and carry nine 11 inch guns, twelve 5.9 inch guns, fourteen 4.1 inch antiaircraft guns, and sixteen 37 millimeter antiaircraft guns. The German navy now has left four capital ships, two heavy cruisers, six other cruisers, 22 destroyers, 12 torpedo boats, 30 motor torpedo boats, and a reported total of 65 submarines as of the outbreak of the war.

61 KILLED ABOARD EXETER; BRITISH TOLL PUT AT 72

Both Officers and Sailors Among Victims.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (AP).—Three British cruisers which engaged the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee suffered 72 killed and 30 wounded in the battle, the admiralty disclosed today.

"In the severe and well fought action of Dec. 13," the admiralty said, "61 men were killed and 23 wounded on board the cruiser Exeter."

Five Exeter officers were killed and three wounded. The remainder of those killed and wounded were enlisted men. The admiralty said a temporary hospital ship was being dispatched from Buenos Aires to meet the Exeter.

The communique also said seven seamen were killed aboard the cruiser Ajax and five wounded—one seriously.

Thirty-six men were killed and 60 wounded aboard the Graf Spee in the battle.

The admiralty had announced last Friday that four crewmen were killed and three wounded aboard the cruiser Achilles, the third British ship to participate in the battle.

SINKS WITH ITS SECRETS

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 18 [Monday, 4 a. m.].—Downing street hummed with intensive diplomatic activity yesterday and until early this morning as the situation arising from last week's battle of German and British warships at the mouth of the Plate river reached a climax in the scuttling of the Admiral Graf Spee yesterday.

An official statement issued at 3 a. m. described the scuttling of the Graf Spee as an anti-climax but claimed it vindicated the strategy worked out by the British to deal with the German pocket battleships.

At the same time, naval experts said that the maneuver deprived the British of a chance to learn the secrets of the battleship's construction.

Hourly flashes of events at Montevideo were cabled to the foreign office by British Minister Eugen Millington-Drake. Since the Graf Spee first sought shelter, the minister, on instructions from London, brought heavy pressure to bear on the government of Uruguay to shorten the time limit of the battleship's stay.

Foreign office and admiralty chiefs maintained constant touch on possible diplomatic repercussions between Great Britain and Uruguay regarding infringement of territorial waters.

The chief question posed in diplomatic circles was whether the Graf Spee battle would bring a showdown over delimitation of the 300 mile Atlantic ocean neutral zone as laid down at the Pan-American conference.

British correspondents cabling from Washington, D. C., declared the Graf Spee incident has put the Roosevelt administration in a jam. There was speculation as to the next move and what attitude Washington would take.

Diplomatic correspondents were at pains to stress that Britain never has recognized the 300 mile safety zone limit and it was stated that the mouth of the Plate river, where the action took place, spans 140 miles.

CAPTAIN CHARGES INTERFERENCE IN REPAIRING OF SHIP

Says Workers Delayed in Boarding Spee.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 17 (AP).—The German legation tonight made public Capt. Hans Langsdorff's protest over the time limit granted to the Admiral Graf Spee to stay in port to make herself seaworthy. Addressed to the German minister to Montevideo, Otto Langmann, and dated aboard the Graf Spee today, it said:

Capt. Hans Langsdorff.

"Mr. Minister: Before lifting anchor, I would not wish to leave unsaid thru you my deepest gratitude for the innumerable demonstrations of sympathy and the chivalrous sentiment of the Uruguayan people towards my valiant dead and wounded.

A Jarring Note.

"Much to my regret, there was mingled with these outward signs of truly humanitarian feeling a deep jarring note. According to your communication relative to the interview you had with the Uruguayan Foreign Minister Alberto Guani, the term must be considered definitive which was fixed by the council of ministers to expire at 8 p. m. [5:30 p. m. Chicago time], on Dec. 17, for the departure of the Admiral Graf Spee, notwithstanding that unpostponeable repairs necessary for reëstablishment of seaworthiness cannot be effected in that term.

"Against that ruling I protest in all manner and form. The foundations of my protest follow:

"1. In conformance with article 17 of the Hague convention, warships belonging to belligerent nations may be granted stays in neutral ports sufficiently long to permit repairs indispensable to security of their navigation.

Asked 15 Day Stay.

"To eliminate maritime damages to my ship I requested, after examination by experts, a stay of 15 days.

"2. A technical commission appointed by the Uruguayan government has become convinced that the combat potentiality of the ship, that is to say her engines and armaments, suffered so little that there should be no fear the stay [the requested 15 days] could be used to reënforce her limited potentiality.

"This same commission might have become convinced that on the ship's hull damages could be found, the repair of which was indispensable to put the ship in such condition that it might resist dangers of navigation.

"According to communications made by the minister of foreign affairs, the aforementioned commission named by the minister of defense, stated that a stay of 72 hours was sufficient for repair of damages [the opinion], on which the ruling of the council of ministers is based.

"3. Notwithstanding the intense efforts made, it has not been possible to repair damages within the term fixed with the means available in the port of Montevideo. This could have been attested at any moment thru a new investigation.

Says Repairmen Delayed.

"Within these declarations I set forth formally that the contractor and personnel encharged with the repairs were prevented at 6 p. m. on the 16th day of December, by the customs authorities, from getting on board for several hours.

"They were permitted to come aboard after a lapse of several hours, only after intervention by officials of the German legation.

"I must state that the ruling of the council of ministers of the republic of Uruguay forces me to abandon the port of Montevideo with a ship which has not been repaired in the manner necessary for security of navigation.

A "Flagrant Violation."

"4. The ruling of the council of ministers represents a flagrant violation of the aspirations to humanize war which led to the signing of the aforementioned Hague convention.

"5. The evident discrepancy between the conduct of the Uruguayan people and [excepting the case mentioned in section 3] also authorities on one hand and the decision of the council of ministers on the other hand only becomes clear to me as the result of pressure by some interested party.

"6. Notwithstanding that I do not recognize the basis the Uruguayan government has chosen, I shall respect also the term of stay fixed for me by this government.

"In these conditions, no other solution offers itself to me than to sink my ship thru explosion in proximities of the coast, disembarking my crew as it may be possible.

"LANGSDORFF, captain."

Germans Seize Britain's New Minister to Bolivia

LONDON, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—A Reuters [British agency] dispatch from Moscow today said Gordon Vereker, counselor of the British embassy in Moscow, who left for London 10 days ago en route to his new post as minister to Bolivia, presumably was being detained in Germany, having been removed from an Estonian ship.

PIECE TOGETHER STORY OF BATTLE OFF MONTEVIDEO

Three Terriers of the Sea Smashed Warship.

shore of firing at sea, but not until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the warships turned off Punta del Este, was there definite information. Then the lighthouse keeper sighted the German battleship running before the Achilles and Ajax.

Just after passing the point the British cruisers turned westward toward the shore to put the Graf Spee between them and the setting sun for one last assault. The raider stood up sharply in silhouette against the reflected light in the eastern sky, while they were protected by the shadows of the land.

Volley After Volley.

Once again the roar of the British guns detonated across the water as the Ajax and Achilles fired volley after volley against the battleship. This tactic and the punishment she was taking compelled the Graf Spee to change her course disadvantageously toward the southeast. But long after darkness had fallen the British guns continued to fire.

Under cover of night the Graf Spee eluded her pursuers and finally reached refuge at Montevideo.

Capt. Langsdorff, upon reaching port, gave a somewhat different account of the action from that detailed by the British authorities. He said that he was heading south at 6 a. m. Wednesday when he glimpsed the Exeter off the coast of Brazil.

His ship, he said, was in a critical condition, due to lack of fuel, since he had been unable to make contact with the German supply ship, Tacoma. While taking stock of the Exeter and his own situation, Capt. Langsdorff continued, he suddenly observed the Ajax and Achilles also running down upon him.

A Critical Position.

They maneuvered so that his ship was between them and the shore, he continued, and fearing that he might go aground, yet unable because of his lack of fuel to run out to sea for an open fight, he found himself, as he expressed it, "between the devil and the deep blue sea."

His only resort, therefore, was to take the offensive, and he opened fire on the Exeter with his 11 inch guns. Langsdorff said the Exeter was severely damaged before the 6 inch guns of the Achilles and Ajax could be brought to bear.

When the two smaller ships did come up, Langsdorff said, they inflicted much heavier damage than the Exeter. They battered the Graf Spee's bow and control tower and took the heavy toll among the crew. Many of the casualties were in the control tower, and there was a heavy loss in a chamber forward near the water line, where powerful armor piercing shells exploded after drilling the four inch plate.

No Chance to Maneuver.

Langsdorff found every attempt at maneuvering thwarted by the speedy British cruisers.

"They risked more than seemed credible, at one time crossing thru a smoke screen to get within a mile of the Graf Spee," the captain said. "They scored some of their most effective hits on both sides of our ship from that range."

Langsdorff said that flight became the only tenable course. He headed down the Uruguayan coast exchanging a running fire with his enemies. Altho the British came "perilously near" between Punta del Este and Montevideo, the Graf Spee, he said, turned broadside and fired a heavy salvo that beat them off long enough for the Germans to make port.

In addition to losses of 61 men killed and 23 wounded aboard the Exeter seven British seamen were killed and five wounded aboard the Ajax and four crewmen killed and three wounded aboard the Achilles—a total of 72 killed and 31 wounded in all.

DIRECTOR OF EXPORT SOCIETY IN BELGRADE IS SLAIN IN RED HUNT

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—Dr. Edo Markovitch, director general of the Jugo-Slav State Export society, was killed today in a pistol duel with police who attempted to search his apartment in a series of raids for evidence of foreign sponsorship of communist demonstrations.

Dr. Markovitch's daughter, a Belgrade university student, was arrested last week and charged with being one of the leaders of a student demonstration in which two persons were killed and 30 wounded.

A servant said Dr. Markovitch mistook police, who entered his apartment at dawn, for bandits and fired in self-defense.

Authorities said they were investigating reports the series of communist demonstrations were financed with funds from Germany.

At Split, port on the Adriatic sea, Mile Buljanovich, reputed communist leader, was reported killed and seven wounded when a crowd estimated at 1,000, shouting communist slogans, stormed police barracks and battled officers with pistols and stones.

Cause of the riots was not revealed but the rising cost of living provides an easy ground for agitators.

TROTSKY BALKS AT TESTIFYING ON STALINIST DEEDS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—"I never accepted and will not accept any invitation to discuss Stalinist activities with Mr. Dies or Mr. Matthews behind closed doors," Leon Trotsky, former Red army leader, said today when asked about his proposed appearance before the Dies committee to testify about the history of the communist party.

He was referring to Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee on un-Americanism, and J. B. Matthews, committee investigator.

"I do not have the slightest connection with Mr. Matthews," Trotsky continued, "but I am ready to accept again an invitation to appear before the committee in order to give the American public correct information about questions which are probably more familiar to me than to any other person."

He denied that Mexico was unwilling to let him return if he appeared before the Dies committee at Austin, Tex.

REDS HURL FRESH TROOPS AT FINNS; DRIVES REPULSED

Three of Biggest Tanks Wrecked in Traps.

Salmijarvi, had crossed the Norwegian border and used a road over Norwegian territory. The Finns said their roads were tightly guarded, but this attack came unexpectedly from a flank. Norwegian authorities said they had received no information about such a crossing into their territory.]

The Finnish communique said: "Our own air forces were quite active during the day, bombing, among other things, an enemy tank detachment near the firing line."

Threatened by GPU.

Further confirmation that the GPU [Russian secret police] is spurring the Red army commanders into combat was discovered among the papers of a soviet colonel. He had received a bitter notification from the GPU reprimanding him for the slow advance of his regiment and threatening to bring him before a revolutionary tribunal unless he could report an early victory against the Finns.

The attacks of the last two days on the Karelian isthmus failed to halt the work of constructing winter quarters for the troops. They continued to dig deep, roomy dugouts roofed with two layers of 12 inch logs between which has been packed a filling of fir and pine branches two feet thick. Besides being comfortable and warm these quarters facilitate the preparation of better meals which also can be eaten at leisure by the soldiers.

Appeals to World for Aid.

President Kyosti Kallio, broadcasting to Finland's armed forces, appealed to the world for "substantial aid" against the Russian invaders.

"The league of nations, in which 49 nations are represented, unanimously branded Russia the aggressor and 40 of these states condemned the soviet with expulsion," Kallio said.

"We note these circumstances with great satisfaction and await measures against the aggressor by states which are members of the league.

"We need more active help than that so far obtained."

Claim Advance in Center.

MOSCOW, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—The advance of Red army troops to a point 80 miles within east central Finland was announced today in a communique issued by soviet Russian commanders.

The communique, also covering yesterday's activity in the Russian-Finnish conflict in northern Finland, asserted that soviet troops also had progressed almost 50 miles along the road south of Petsamo.

Earlier reports in Moscow said inclement weather had given the Finns a break yesterday. Vast fleets of soviet planes were being held back on all fronts and virtually were useless in the military campaign.

It became increasingly apparent to Moscow observers that the Red army would be unable to hand over all of Finland as a gift to Dictator Josef Stalin on his birthday, Dec. 21. This was reported to have been one of Russia's original aims.

JAPS MAY OPEN YANGTZE RIVER TO AMERICAN SHIPS

TOKIO, Dec. 18, Monday (AP).—A high source disclosed today the Japanese Foreign Minister Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura had told United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew the Yangtze river would be reopened to third power commerce.

It was said this promise figured largely today in their third conference aimed at settlement of conflicting policies in China. It was seen as concrete evidence that Japan would commit herself to refrain from interference with American rights and interests.

The move also might facilitate negotiation of a new trade understanding to succeed the treaty expiring Jan. 26 as a result of the United States' abrogation of last July.

RUSSIA ACCUSES U. S. OF HELPING LEAGUE OUSTER

Says Observer Placed Pressure on Latins.

MOSCOW, Dec. 17 (AP).—The United States today was accused by the communist party newspaper Pravda of influencing Latin American states to support expulsion of Russia from the league of nations.

Pravda said the League assembly sessions were held "behind closed doors but in the presence of an American 'observer,' Mr. Edgar, in the rôle of school supervisor. He was silent but watched carefully over the behavior of Latin American diplomats.

"They conducted themselves according to 'the plan.' The representative of the single American state which is carrying on a policy independent of the United States—Mexico—objected against expulsion."

[United States Vice Consul Donald B. Edgar attended the closed League assembly session as an observer when Russia was condemned as an aggressor and expelled.]

Anti-Red Bloc Held Goal.

Britain's chief aim, Pravda continued, was to "knock together an anti-soviet bloc after the failure to draw Russia into the imperialist war."

Discussing the 13-nation special League committee on the Russian-Finnish problem, Pravda said that "excepting Sweden and Norway, all the rest were either Britain's direct agents, her dominions, or were acting on the authorization of the U. S. A.—the Latin American states."

Members of the committee were Britain, France, Ireland, India, Egypt, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Uruguay, Bolivia, Venezuela, Portugal and Thailand [Siam].

Calls It Family Party.

Nine of these "maintain no diplomatic relations with the U. S. S. R. and represent hotbeds of the most violent antisoviet propaganda." Pravda said. "Of course a 'committee' of such familylike composition adopted without dispute the draft resolution which the British master was pleased to propose."

Election of South Africa, Bolivia and Finland to the League council, whose unanimous approval was necessary for expulsion, was called trickery by Pravda, which asserted the action was "decided by the votes of British dominions and colonies and the clerks of Anglo-French-American capitalism."

SHOT AND KILLED IN QUARREL.

Andrew Jackson, 55 years old, colored, was shot and killed yesterday in a quarrel with another colored man in a vacant lot near his home at 9017 Green Bay avenue. His assailant fled.

SKI ARMY MOVES SWIFTLY IN QUIET OF FINNISH NIGHT

Wiry Horses Pull Artillery Set on Runners.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE FINNISH ARMY ON THE KARELIAN FRONT, Dec. 17.—Finland's speediest troops are moving up to this front during the long darkness of arctic nights, their long racing skis carrying them swiftly and unerringly along the narrow woodland roads.

This army, which uses bicycles in warm weather, has just been issued its winter equipment, including new skis made of the toughest Finnish birch and provided with strong bindings.

The army permits the soldiers to have their own skis and bindings if they wish, but it is specified that long, narrow racing skis must be used. The Finns are proud of their skis.

Artillery on Toboggans.

Even the light artillery of these regiments is mounted on big skis which resemble toboggans. The small, wiry Finnish horses handle the guns easily over the hilly and rocky forests of eastern Finland.

Driving from one section of this front to another in my automobile, I frequently passed long lines of these ski soldiers traveling on both sides of the road. The center of the road was left open for vehicles.

The army also is using a great number of American automobiles of all makes. Not more than one car out of 25 was of European make. Many of these cars are seen on the roads and clustered around various army headquarters. Some are camouflaged with white paint, applied either solidly or in daubs. Others are covered with white sheets, while still others used at the front have layers of fir branches held to their roofs by fishing nets.

Wounded Moved Quickly.

The roads are excellent in this sector and even the forest tracks form no obstacles for big American passenger buses which have been converted into ambulances by the Finns.

In one small town near the front I watched a hospital train being loaded at night with wounded soldiers. They were being moved swiftly from the converted buses thru the wide windows of third class railway coaches. Inside the coaches stretchers were hung from simple but effective hooks suspended from the baggage racks.

Doctors said that within 24 hours of being wounded the soldiers on this front are in comfortable beds in hospitals or other places prepared for them in western and central Finland.

A British artillery colonel told me that thus far soviet artillery had failed to find or shell a single Finnish battery on this front.

Altho I was close to many of these batteries during my visit, the Finns were not willing to show the camouflaged guns. They are completely hidden in thickets of fir trees.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

BRITISH PATROL BLOWN UP BY MINE IN NO MAN'S LAND

Wounded Soldier Tells of First Casualties.

BY JOHN O'DONNELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Dec. 17.—French and British censors tonight released for publication the fact that British troops, three months after they reached France, have suffered their first casualties. The announcement came with this comment from the French command:

"The British now have their wounded and even their dead on French soil once again."

The news that British troops were facing Germans in a sector of the Maginot fortifications was revealed last week when King George inspected his soldiers within range of the German artillery. This correspondent is now allowed to report that at that time I sat by the hospital cot of a British infantry sergeant major and heard him tell how the English suffered what were probably the first of their battle casualties in this war.

The sergeant major's story of a patrol in no man's land indicated night reconnaissance has not changed much since 1918.

Hurt as Mine Explodes.

The sergeant major was with a platoon of seasoned regulars plucked from a famous regiment. The night was bitterly cold. Snow had been falling and the mud of no man's land had a treacherous frosting of ice that cracked under each step the men took in their hip-high rubber boots.

The patrol felt its way slowly for nearly three miles across a wooded darkness of midnight. Suddenly, as they were creeping tensely forward, a mine exploded, "seemingly under our feet," said the sergeant major.

The sergeant major was wounded. A corporal fell, his legs splintered from the ankles to the knees.

There was a flurry of bewildered excitement, then the patrol was reorganized. A runner was sent back to company headquarters for stretcher bearers. Minutes passed and the wounded men were losing blood rapidly. An order was given to return.

Those who were unable to walk were cradled in the army overcoats of their companions. With four men carrying each coat with its burden of a wounded or a dying man, the patrol stumbled back the long miles thru the darkness and cold, reaching its front line as dawn broke over the German lines to the east.

French Report Quiet Day.

PARIS, Dec. 17 (AP).—A French army communique tonight reported reduced activity on the western front and added that there was nothing of importance to report.

The morning communique said there were "artillery and infantry actions at various points on the front."

["On the west front, no fighting worth mention," the German high command's communique stated yesterday.]

German raiders are said to have been repulsed in an attack Saturday night east of the Blies river.

GAAR WILLIAMS' BEST WORKS PUT IN 2 PORTFOLIOS

Devotees of the work of Gaar Williams, famous Tribune cartoonist, have a new treat in store. Two portfolios of his work, containing the cream of his fine and kindly pen, are now on sale.

The portfolios, published by THE TRIBUNE, sell for 25 cents apiece. Each contains reproductions of 25 selected drawings. These are loose and suitable for framing. John T. McCutcheon, lifelong friend of Williams, who died in 1935, wrote a foreword to each folio.

One portfolio deals with "Among the Folks in History." The best beloved drawings from that series have been culled for inclusion. The other deals with his "Fishing and Hunting" cartoons. The portfolios may be obtained at the Tribune Public Service offices and at several Chicago book stores.

BRITISH FIGHT OFF GERMAN PLANES ON EAST COAST

3 More Vessels Sunk; Jap Freighter Freed.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (AP).—German aircraft flew over several points of Britain's east coast late this afternoon and antiaircraft guns opened fire, the air ministry announced tonight.

British fighters went up and chased the German planes back out to sea, the ministry added. One of the enemy craft is said to have been destroyed.

Crowds on the seaside promenade of one east coast town watched an air encounter in which fighter planes chased off a German bomber after several bombs fell in the water.

There was antiaircraft fire for a short time in the Humber district.

Two Steamers Sunk.

The 487 ton British steamer Serenity was bombed and sunk by German planes in what was believed to have been an attack on a fleet of mine sweepers off England's northeast coast. The crew of eight was saved.

Sinking of the 1,162 ton British steamer Amble by a mine in the North sea also was disclosed. Her crew of 17 was landed on Saturday on the northeast coast after spending seven hours in open boats.

The 321 ton Strindheim, a Norwegian vessel, was reported sunk off Scotland, probably by a mine. Eight of the crew are missing. The 534 ton Jotun, also Norwegian, ran ashore off northeast England. Her crew was rescued.

Japanese Freighter Released.

The Japanese freighter Sanyo Maru was released after a 24 hour stay at a British contraband control base, thereby failing to become a test case of Britain's blockade of German exports. The 976 ton vessel left Rotterdam yesterday with German machinery and potash and was detained by the British for examination.

After her release it was explained the Japanese government gave assurance that all goods of German origin on board had been paid for before Nov. 27, when the order in council decreeing the blockade was issued. Japan and other countries have protested against the blockade order.

British Raid 2 Island Bases.

BERLIN, Dec. 17 (AP).—British bombing planes, continuing attempts to cripple Germany's air arm, again raided the island bases of Norderney and Sylt, off the northwest German coast last night, a high command communique reported today. A few bombs fell in the sea, it added.

Germany issued figures to show she has sunk more than 1,000,000 tons of shipping going to or from British ports since the beginning of the war.

With 74,045 tons of warships that the statement said the British had admitted were lost, the total commercial and naval tonnage destroyed was given as 1,050,864 tons. It said 241,050 tons were sunk in the first two weeks of this month.

The second week in December was cited as especially successful in the German sea campaign, with 32 vessels totaling 119,324 tons sent down. Twenty-four were British.

[There was no official comment available in London yesterday on the German claim that 1,000,000 tons of shipping bound to and from British ports had been sunk. The last announcement by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, on Dec. 6 said 340,000 tons of British merchant vessels had been sunk. Losses of neutrals were not given.]

LEATHER AND MEN

By CALEB

MEN like leather. A polished leathern box shining as a saddle draws a man's eye and hand like a magnet. There is a clean odor men like in a new wallet, or a portfolio of leather. The sound of leather being bent or flexed is music to men's ears. A simple leather binding on a book clothes the contents, if they are good, to a man's special satisfaction.

Men's appreciation of leather is not new. In the sixteenth century a lusty fellow who knew the natural affinity of a man for leather wrote:

A Leather Bottel he know is good
Far better than glasses or cans of wood,
For when a Man is at work in the Field,
Your Glasses and Pots no comfort will yield,
Then a good Leather Bottel standing him by
He may drink always when he is dry.
When this bottel doth grow old,
And will good Liquor no longer hold,
Out of the side, you may take a clout
Will mend your shoes when there worn out,
Else take it and hang it upon a pin,
It will serve to put odd trifles in . . .
Then I wish in Heaven his soul may dwell
That first devised the Leather Bottel!

There is leather severe and plain, and leather adorned and decorated. Leather gleaming and mellowed like old wood. Leather smoky or fresh of odor. Leather may have a misty darkness that goes with a man's private trappings at home or abroad, while for other tastes it has a gleaming brightness in lusty rich tans and buffs that actually carry the sun indoors.

Cigarette boxes, handkerchief boxes, tie or collar cases, books, travel kits, toilet cases, desk sets, dresser sets, jewelry cases, books, luggage, belts, slippers—are a few of the things in which men's favored material, leather, are beautifully produced.

Men like leather. If you are in doubt for Christmas, explore its possibilities. Long-lived wares of leather make fitting men's gifts.

MEN WHO SAILED BREMEN TO HOME FETED IN BERLIN

'British Navy Never Saw Us,' Skipper Boasts.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—"We saw English warships trying to hold us up, but they did not see us," Commodore Adolf Ahrens boasted joyfully today as he described how he and his crew spirited the 51,000 ton liner Bremen, proud flagship of the North German Lloyd line, across the Atlantic to Russia and from Russia thru the North sea to Germany.

Commodore Ahrens and members of the crew who took part in the last adventurous flight from Murmansk, Russian port on the Arctic, back to Germany were guests of honor in the German capital today and, with everybody talking of the naval warfare, the boys in blue were given a rousing welcome.

As in his initial radio broadcast on his arrival in Germany on Dec. 12, Ahrens intimated that search of the Bremen in New York was an American effort to help the British capture it.

Pretends to Head for Azores.

"The Americans even unscrewed some marble plates in the swimming pool to make sure no guns were hid den under the columns, tho the space was not wide enough to allow the barrel of a gun to be hidden there," he said.

When the Bremen left New York on Aug. 30 she pretended to start for the Azores, Ahrens said, but when dusk came all lights were turned off and her 120,000 horse power "was unleashed and the vessel headed northward and for seven days and nights the Bremen sailed thru fog."

The Bremen experienced some difficulty on arrival in the port of Germany's newest ally, Russia. Tho Ahrens, like all captains of ships plying the oceans in the tourist trade, is an accomplished diplomat, he hinted at the "suddenness of changes which did not all have to do with the Bremen herself."

Extra Personnel Sent Home.

Shortly after arrival in Murmansk, the stewards and all who could be spared from the Bremen—there was a total of 85 men—returned to Germany. The 124 who remained were set to work preparing for the final escape.

Painting of the ship, which was started on the way from New York, was completed. The top section was dark gray and the lower section black, "just like British ships nowadays," the captain said. The crew which was left in Murmansk had to withstand a rigorous climate and a diet lacking in vegetables.

After a while the Russians decided to give the German crews a glimpse of life under the soviet régime. A special organizer of clubs came from Leningrad to look after the social program.

The Russo-German social exchange started in the ballroom of the Bremen with about 70 German guests from the Bremen and other German ships as the guests of soviet organizations in Murmansk. The Russians also allowed the use of their prize film, "Peter the Great," and the first five of its 10 acts were shown on the Bremen's screen.

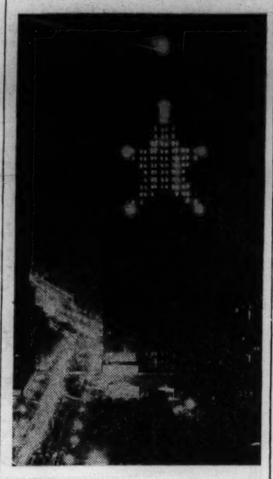
A week later the Russians entertained in the International club in Murmansk.

Time to Run for Home.

Before a third Nazi-soviet social evening could be organized, the Russians invaded Finland and the captain of the Bremen decided it was time for the homeward trip. At a speed of 33 miles an hour, which is slightly more than the Bremen's rated 26.5 knots, the Bremen streaked back to Germany. Commodore Ahrens expressed gratitude for the help of the German navy in the safe return of his ship and men but insisted German naval units did not convoy the ship.

Commodore Ahrens admitted that if the ship had been in danger of capture the Germans would have scuttled her. "I can assure you that regardless of what happened the English would never have got the Bremen," he said.

Star Over Chicago



Lighted windows in Palmolive building forming giant star last night.

The upper floors of the Palmolive building flamed into a giant star last night at dusk. The five-pointed design was formed by lighting scores of windows in the south side of the upper 17 floors. The star was 204 feet high and 128 feet wide, with the tips of each point marked by high-powered bulbs. Eight electricians and maintenance men worked all day to prepare it. Carl E. Olin, building manager, said the star symbolizes peace over America.

FRENCH WARNED TO SEIZE ANY ONE USING PARACHUTE

Believes Nazis Dropping Spies from Planes.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 17.—The danger that enemy agents may be introduced among the civil population of France by dropping them from airplanes as was done in the world war was emphasized today by the French press which called on the peasants to keep a sharp lookout for parachutists descending in deserted parts of the country.

Any one seen landing by parachute, even if he is wearing the uniform of a French soldier, should immediately be seized and turned over to military authorities, the newspaper L'Intransigeant advised in an article exhorting peasants to coöperate in the anti-spy campaign.

Tried Back of Maginot Line.

The military will decide if the parachutists are French airmen or agents, whom Adolf Hitler wants to get into France to carry on sabotage and direct defeatist propaganda.

This is known to be one of the German tactics for carrying out the war on the domestic front. It has been tried on a small scale in the army zone back of the Maginot line where, it is said, French troops have captured a number of enemy agents before they could hide their parachutes and escape in nonmilitary garb.

As part of the war of demoralization against civilians, it is suspected Hitler will intensify this activity by sending numbers of French speaking Germans dressed in civilian clothes and equipped with French identification papers. Their task would be to direct sabotage work in industrial centers and carry on defeatist propaganda.

Propaganda by Recordings.

PARIS, Dec. 17 (AP).—A new kind of German propaganda—records and songs—has been found circulating in France, the government reported today. The ministry of the interior said the Germans have been sending such propaganda into the country by an "indirect postal route."

CARDINAL FAULHABER TO QUIT MUNICH POST, VATICAN CITY HEARS

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 17.—Changes are expected to take place shortly in the Catholic hierarchy of Germany which, if they materialize, will lend substance to unconfirmed reports that relations between the Vatican and the German government are improving.

Cardinal von Faulhaber.

Cardinal Michael von Faulhaber, 71 years old, in failing health and an irreconcilable adversary of the Nazi antireligious policy, will be retired from the archbishopric of Munich, according to sources close to the Vatican. Msgr. Konrad von Preysing-Lichtenegg-Moos, bishop of Berlin, is slated to be transferred to Munich. His place, it is said, will be taken by Msgr. Wilhelm Bernig, bishop of Osnabruck, who visited Chicago in 1928.

Like Cardinal Faulhaber, Msgr. Preysing is an anti Nazi and has had clashes with the government. Msgr. Berning is reputed to have Naziphile feelings.

ALD. SMITH WILL BE HONORED AT DINNER TONIGHT

State and local Republican leaders will participate in a testimonial dinner to Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith of the 6th ward in the Stevens hotel tonight. Maj. A. K. Stiles, chairman of the Republican state central committee, will be toastmaster and will introduce a long list of speakers headed by Congressman Dewey Short of Indiana. Others on the program are Speaker Hugh Cross of the Illinois house of representatives, Mrs. Mabel B. 2 Purse Thieves Held; Confess 20 Robberies

Alfred Czaja, 16 years old, 2146 Evergreen street, and Edward Kolakowski, 19, of 1346 North Artesian avenue, were held last night by North avenue police as purse snatchers. According to Policemen Walter Thomas, Al Bruns, and Edward Sexton they confessed about 20 thefts. They were questioned about the recent attacks on several women on the northwest side after it was learned, police said, that they had knocked one of their purse victims to the sidewalk.

Ex-Inmate of St. Charles Faces Slaying Trial Today

TREASURY BUSY ON TAX BILL FOR NEXT CONGRESS

Report Program Designed to Adjust Inequalities.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—The treasury department is secretly at work on a tax bill for presentation to congress and later to the people in a presidential election year.

The bill is being drafted despite the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., in November that the treasury would make no tax revision recommendations to congress at the forthcoming session.

The treasury has no intention of increasing the tax burden under the program, but rather is seeking to adjust inequalities and unfair features in the present tax structure.

La Follette Favors Boost.

However, the introduction of the bill may provide a peg upon which increased taxes will come to the nation's taxpayers. Senator Robert La Follette has a plan to lower income tax exemptions and raise income tax rates.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, who has adopted the La Follette plan, also would increase the levies on large corporations.

Mr. Roosevelt put out a feeler on new taxes during his recent vacation at Warm Springs, Ga. He suggested that congress consider the possibility of exacting new taxes to meet a predicted 500 million dollar rise in national defense costs, occasioned by the European war.

Congress Cool to Raise.

Congress received the suggestion with coolness, indicating no desire to add taxes in a year when the majority of its membership will seek reelection. Business registered a burning protest to the proposal.

Business leaders asserted that in offering his suggestion at a time when business was slowly regaining its feet, Mr. Roosevelt again was hampering recovery. It was charged that the President was attempting to use the war as an excuse to raise funds to cover his wasteful spending.

Under the La Follette plan the exemption of married persons would be cut from $2,500 to $1,500 and that of single persons from $1,000 to $600. Credit for earned incomes would be abolished and the tax rate would be stepped up in the higher brackets. It is estimated the plan would return about 200 million dollars to the federal treasury each year.

Eccles for Increase.

Eccles would increase the normal income tax on corporations to take away a share of war profits and put extra taxes on rainy day reserves piled up in "excessive amounts" by large corporations.

In the tax legislation being drafted in the treasury none of these plans is being considered. The work is being carried out under the direction of Under Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes.

His friendly gestures toward business have been countermanded by the White House. When he threatened to resign last June, the White House promised to give him a free hand with a tax adjustment scheme so long as it did not pare down collections.

Hanes canvassed all fields of business for suggestions on improving the nation's tax structure. His fact finding program is being drafted into a bill for congress.

DEWEY ARRESTS 24 IN DRIVE ON BLACKMAIL RING

New York, Dec. 17 [Special].—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office revealed today it had smashed an extortion ring which had blackmailed wealthy persons, fearful of exposures of scandals in their private lives, of $1,000,000 in the last two years. Twenty-four men have been arrested.

News of the blackmail syndicate, hidden by authorities during more than a year's investigation, came out with the docketing for trial tomorrow of three alleged members of the ring.

More than 30 have been indicted and many have pleaded guilty. Police and the district attorney's office have concealed the identities of the victims, many well known in café society.

The ring, according to indictments, centered around a young man—known as "The Chicken"—who would have himself invited to victims' homes, where he would steal trinkets. His confederates, posing as police and reporters, collected the blackmail on the pretense that "The Chicken" had been arrested and was ready to reveal scandals unless he was freed and blackmail paid.

BATTERY MAKER WHO DEFIED NRA FACES TAX SUIT

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 17 [Special].—Fred Perkins, York, Pa., battery manufacturer, who defied the NRA in 1934 and went to jail, is facing a state suit for $222.41 because he refused to pay state unemployment taxes under the federal social security program.

Perkins admits frankly that he has not paid the federal tax on pay rolls for the old age pension fund and says he isn't going to pay any social security taxes. Perkins also admits he violated the federal wage and hour act by not paying the required minimum wage to two girls who did some work for him last week.

Declaring that his small business earns only about $2,500 a year, Perkins says he needs every cent he can get to support his wife and himself.

STEVENS ACCESSORIES—FIRST FLOOR

Oooh Johnny Oh Johnny Oooh!

Let's have every window bright with light this Christmas Eve—

AMERICA'S "NIGHT OF LIGHT"

ON a night in 1914, when the tread of mobilizing troops was heard in thousands of streets, Sir Edward Grey stood looking out of the window of the Foreign Office in London—then turned and said:

"The lamps are going out all over Europe; we shall not see them lit again in our lifetime."

As this Christmas of 1939 approaches, the lamps of Europe are blacked out as they have never been. From the peasant's cottage to the great metropolitan avenues, men and women and children live like moles, afraid of light.

There, Light has become a symbol of threatening death, instead of life.

On Christmas, sacred to hundreds of millions as the birthday of the Light of the World—Who came "that we might have Life, and have it more abundantly"—on His day more than half the world will have darkness, hate, fear and violent death.

BUT WE CAN HAVE LIGHT. LET'S HAVE IT!

Not in a spirit of boastfulness, but of thankfulness, let us have LIGHT in America—as never before—this Christmas Eve!

Let this light shine as the symbol of our freedom, and of our determination never to let it go!

Let us remember that the regimented peoples of Europe began their journey to where they are this Christmas by GIVING away their liberty, little by little. No dictator could have TAKEN it from them at the beginning.

Now they have the BLACK-OUT.

WHAT I PROPOSE to my fellow Americans is that we re-dedicate our hearts and minds to the purposes of democracy—re-charge our spirit to defend it from every encroachment—BY LIGHTING EVERY LIGHT IN AMERICA ON CHRISTMAS EVE.

Let every building where Americans live or work—every cottage, every factory, every office, every store, every school, every church—be ablaze with LIGHT.

Let this LIGHT symbolize our freedom to THINK—our freedom to SPEAK—our freedom to READ—our freedom to HEAR—our freedom to LEARN—our freedom to WORSHIP.

Let LIGHT be America's answer to the black-out of intelligence which the world is experiencing!

Yesterday I sent a telegram, like the one shown, to the Governor of every State; to the U.S. Conference of Mayors; to groups representing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths; to Veterans' and other Patriotic organizations; to leading Fraternal organizations; to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

THERE IS NO TIME to form a national organization for this "Night of Light." But there is ample time to turn the switches, light the lamps on Christmas Eve.

Will you, whether you control the lights in a single room, or an apartment, or a house, or an office building, or a factory—will you see that the lights are turned on at dusk on Christmas Eve?

Then, sometime during the evening, will you get out into the street and look at the myriad lights you and others have lighted?

Will you think what they stand for, and thank God that America is not blacked out, but the land of Liberty and Light?

The lamps are going on all over America; we will not see them dimmed in our lifetime.

Will you light them Christmas Eve?

HONORABLE HENRY HORNER, GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS=

AS AMERICA'S ANSWER TO THE BLACK-OUT THREATENING THE WORLD - A BLACK-OUT OF FREEDOM AS WELL AS LIGHT - WILL YOU PROCLAIM CHRISTMAS EVE A "NIGHT OF LIGHT", CALLING ON CITIZENS TO KEEP EVERY ROOM OF EVERY HOME AND BUILDING FULLY LIGHTED, WITH BLINDS WIDE OPEN, FROM DUSK TO MIDNIGHT? I BELIEVE THIS SYMBOLIC ACTION, MAKING THIS NIGHT BRIGHTER THAN ANY WE HAVE EVER EXPERIENCED, WOULD DRAMATICALLY CONTRAST AMERICA'S FREEDOM TO THE DARKNESS WHICH ENSHROUDS NOT ONLY EUROPE'S CITIES, BUT HER DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS - AND WOULD RE-CHARGE OUR DETERMINATION TO KEEP AMERICA BEYOND THE REACH OF DICTATORSHIP. AS AN AMERICAN CITIZEN I AM SENDING THIS SUGGESTION TO EVERY GOVERNOR AND TO THE MAYOR OF EVERY LARGE CITY. I BELIEVE THAT CITIZENS WILL SPONTANEOUSLY RESPOND, AND THAT AMERICA'S "NIGHT OF LIGHT" WILL BE BIGGER, MORE SIGNIFICANT NEWS - IN NATIONS WHERE NEWS CAN STILL BE CIRCULATED - THAN ANY BLACK-OUT HAS BEEN.=

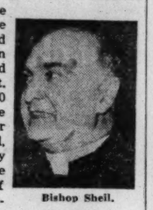
10,000 WILL JOIN IN GOOD FELLOW WORK THIS WEEK

Annual Carol Sing to Go on W-G-N Today.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

More than 10,000 men, women, and children of Chicago and its suburbs will participate this week in the 31st annual Good Fellow campaign which will end Saturday night. Among the 10,000 will be all those who will deliver baskets of food, toys, and candy to unfortunate families—most of these will be distributed Saturday morning—and other thousands who have taken part in Good Fellow activities.



Bishop Sheil.

The Good Fellow Button.

Last night 600 Good Fellow leaders attended the broadcast in the W-G-N audience studio of the "Your Sunday Date" program, directed by Harold Stokes. The Good Fellow speaker was Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, administrator of the archdiocese of Chicago. Bishop Sheil said the Good Fellow work is worthy of both commendation and support.

Carol Sing Today.

At 3:30 p. m. today 1,000 boys and girls will join in the annual Good Fellow High School Carol sing, led by Miss Helen Howe, director of music in the Chicago public schools. The concert will be given around the 40 foot tall Christmas tree in the areaway between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building. The first 15 minutes of the sing will be broadcast on W-G-N.

Other Good Fellow festivities this week will include the annual Fraternity Good Fellow luncheon, to be held at noon Wednesday in the Red room in the La Salle hotel, and the annual aviation Good Fellow ceremony at Chicago airport Saturday morning.

Urges Family Inquiries.

Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, one of the organizations from which names of unfortunate families are taken for the Good Fellow bureau, urged yesterday that all those who wish to take baskets to the needy first have the families they plan to aid investigated. Every family whose name is given to the Good Fellows is first investigated by the agency submitting its name.

There still is time for you to help the Good Fellow work. Read the Good Fellow coupon accompanying this story and sign it as a participant in one of the three plans as outlined there. Send it to the Good Fellow bureau at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. The telephone is Superior 0100.

DIRECTOR BALKS AT ARMY DRILL IN CCC PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP).—An appeal by Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, for voluntary military training in the CCC camps drew a reply today from James J. McEntee, acting CCC director, that militarization would be costly, inefficient, ineffective, and impractical. The two men discussed the subject in a broadcast.

Raymond J. Kelly.

McEntee held it was a delusion to think that a strong military reserve could be built up by adding a few hours of military training to the CCC enrollees' weekly schedule.

Kelly contended that the added cost would be negligible, and added: "Such a training program would build a reservoir of potential citizen soldiers, basically trained and ready to assume their burden if the emergency arises."

SEIZE DILLINGER PROTECTOR AS A ROBBER SUSPECT

Albert W. Reilly.

Albert W. [Pat] Reilly, 32 years old, who was sentenced in 1934 to two terms in federal prison totaling three years and three months for harboring the late outlaw, John Dillinger, was arrested yesterday at Madison and Loomis streets. He is wanted on suspicion of robbery at Hastings, Minn. Detectives George Maher and Timothy Hayes said Reilly told them he had been living at 125 Ogden avenue. He was using the name of William Reilly.

Reilly was first sentenced to 21 months at St. Paul, Minn., for taking Dillinger and John Hamilton, a member of Dillinger's gang, now dead, to a physician for treatment of wounds received in a bank robbery in Sioux Falls, S. D. He was sentenced later to 18 months for harboring Dillinger and the late Homer Van Meter in the Little Bohemia lodge, near Mercer, Wis.

ROBBERS SOUGHT AS SLAYERS OF 2 IN DOCTOR'S AUTO

New Madrid, Mo., Dec. 17 [Special].—State police and New Madrid county officers continued today to press their hunt for robbers as the slayers of Dr. J. P. Vickery and Mrs. Frances Murphy here Friday night.

The bodies of the physician, who was 60 years old and lived at Steele, Mo., and Mrs. Murphy, 45, a divorcée, were found yesterday in Dr. Vickery's coupé, parked behind a Mississippi river dike on the outskirts of New Madrid. They last were seen alive in a New Madrid tavern Friday night.

Both had been stabbed and beaten. The body of Mrs. Murphy was in the rear compartment of the coupe and the physician's was on the seat.

Law officers are convinced robbery was the motive for the slaying. When Dr. Vickery was in the tavern he had $400. When the bodies were found his purse and Mrs. Murphy's pocketbook were missing. The killers left Dr. Vickery's wrist watch

'GOON' IS SYMBOL OF TERRORISM IN LABOR VIOLENCE

Word Born of Strife on West Coast.

Testimony in Washington, D. C., Saturday that the National Labor Relations board has a "goon squad" aroused interest yesterday in the origin of the word "goon."

Research revealed that it was taken from a comic strip character—a fearsome and bumbling monstrosity of great brawn and no brain. From this source it was applied to labor terrorists in the states of Washington and Oregon, which were beset by violence for four years.

Goons were used to patrol picket lines and to silence dissenting workers and employers. The word thus became a sinister symbol of labor violence.

Tells of Terrorist Tactics.

The testimony in Washington was presented before a house of representatives committee investigating the labor board. James P. Miller, a former labor board regional director in Cleveland, O., testified that a member of the board's "goon" squad was sent to Cleveland in an attempt to terrorize him.

The violence which gave birth to the word "goon" resulted from strife between the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor. Dave Beck of Seattle, Wash., was czar of the west coast teamsters' union, an A. F. of L. affiliate. Harry Bridges, an alien, bossed the west coast C. I. O. Beck dominated Oregon thru Albert E. Rosser, a lieutenant.

Lumber Industry Tied Up.

In the spring of 1937 lumberjacks began deserting A. F. of L. unions to join the C. I. O. Woodworkers of America. Beck and his teamsters' union boycotted the lumber industry, to which transportation was vital. In six months the logging industry lost an estimated 10 million dollars in wages and production. Lumber camps ceased to operate.

Then the "goons" got busy. Workmen were beaten and killed. Homes were bombed. Factories and logging camps were burned.

The violence was ended by Charles H. Martin, then governor of Oregon. The governor, who is 76 years old, decided to meet force with force.

"I intend to maintain law and order," he said. "Goon squads are all alike, whether they're C. I. O. or A. F. of L."

Police Cleanup Ordered.

He ordered the arrest of all labor terrorists. State police, sheriffs, and constables acted quickly, and the "goons" began to disappear.

Oregon voters last year passed an antipicketing law which also contributed to the downfall of the "goons." The law bars stranger picketing and makes it unlawful to obstruct buying, marketing, and handling of agricultural or other products.

As a result of Gov. Martin's drive and the new law, 120 "goons" were arrested early this year on charges ranging from arson to assault and battery. Sixty-five pleaded guilty and 11 were convicted. One of those convicted was Rosser, Beck's lieutenant. He was sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Confesses Killing

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Tilly Irelan, whom Philadelphia police say admitted killing and cutting up her 20 month old son.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 17 (AP).—A children's governess confessed today that she killed her son, 20 months old, dismembered his body with a saw and left the torso in a street where it was found last night. An address scribbled on a newspaper which partially covered the torso led police to the woman's room in a boarding house.

There they found the child's head, arms, and legs in a traveling bag.

Detective Captain James Ryan said the woman, whom he identified as Tilly Irelan, 35, told him she killed her son because he interfered with her work and kept her from attending parties.

The woman told police, Ryan said, that a family had been keeping her child while she worked as a maid and governess. She was quoted as saying she brought the boy to her room Wednesday night and smothered him with a pillow.

LEWIS ATTACKS NLRB; DEMANDS LAW BE CHANGED

Wants Criminal Penalties Against Employers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP).—The Congress of Industrial Organizations, abandoning its previous stand against any change in the national labor relations act, today called on congress for three amendments.

Its proposal was contained in a legislative program drafted by a committee headed by John L. Lewis, the C. I. O. chief.

The C. I. O. charged: "The National Labor Relations board, in an attempt to appease the reactionary interests, including the leaders of the American Federation of Labor, has issued decisions which have threatened the existence of the industrial unions of the Congress of Industrial Organizations by carving out crafts in industrial plants organized by the C. I. O."

It asked for an amendment to prevent the board from carving up any industrial units established by the C. I. O.

Criminal Penalties Asked.

The two other amendments were intended to strengthen enforcement of the act. One would provide criminal penalties for employers convicted of violating the act. Under present law, the board can enforce its orders only by procuring a court order and then having an employer cited for contempt of court if the order is ignored.

The other amendment would prohibit the government from awarding contracts to employers who had violated the labor relations law.

The legislative committee placed at the top of the list of domestic problems the subject of unemployment, saying: "This problem is with us today with the same intensity as a few years ago." The committee estimated that at least 9,500,000 employable persons now are without jobs in private industries.

Conference Is Recommended.

"We recommend," it continued, "that the President of the United States of America immediately convene a conference of the responsible leaders from government, industry, labor, and agriculture who should be commandeered by the government to work at this problem until some concrete plans have been formulated to solve America's problem No. 1."

Until a solution is found, the C. I. O. said, a large part of the unemployed must be employed on public works.

"The absolute minimum for a public works program right now is to furnish three million jobs," the committee asserted, adding that congress must appropriate sufficient funds for such a program.

N. Y. POLICE HEAD SUSPENDS TEN OF HIS LIEUTENANTS

New York, Dec. 17 [Special].—Ten lieutenants and one sergeant of police, all stationed in Brooklyn, were suspended today by Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine after they were named yesterday in a special grand jury presentment as conniving with the bail-bond racketeers of Kings county [Brooklyn]. The grand jury action is a step in Prosecutor John Harlan Amen's inquiry into official corruption in Brooklyn. The presentment was a sealed one, but copies of the document was sent at once to Valentine, and the suspension of the 11 police officers named followed at once.

Commissioner Valentine's order announcing the suspensions stated that the men were relieved from duty pending departmental trial.

SUMMER YAWN GREETS WINTER RATIONS AT ZOO

All This Warm Weather Is Disconcerting.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Five lions, their majestic heads high, lay in the sun and yawned. A svelte tiger, her stripes sleekly black on her tangerine fur, pillowed her sleepy head on a rock. A polar bear folded its front paws and gazed sadly at the waters of its swimming pool.

This all happened yesterday at the Chicago Zoölogical park in Brookfield. Something was wrong. The lions knew it. Every few minutes they emitted sad, questioning roars. The tigers knew it; they paced nervously back and forth. The polar bear knew it; she disdained the water in which she usually splashes.

If Winter Comes!

It was the date, Dec. 17, when all good animals here usually are in their winter quarters. They weren't. Even Bart, the newborn Grant zebra, was outside, gamboling gayly on its beautiful long legs beside Belva, its mother, and the whooper swans on the lake wriggled their hooplike necks and executed their pipe organ scales. All in vain. All in vain. The calendar says it is almost winter.

Maybe you think that is fine. Maybe Florida would like snow in May [or December], but maybe the Brookfield animals don't want spring when they're eating for winter. For that's what they are eating—their winter diet, which is just about half what it is in summer.

No Puddings for Them.

Humans just go ahead and gorge, because it is the plum pudding season, and Christmas wreaths are green even at 55 degrees. But the animals are eating lettuce and garlic instead of oats and barley.

Only one animal is eating more than usual. That is Nancy, the Indian elephant, who is expecting her family in July. She gets 10 gallons of skimmed milk and 10 pounds of spinach a day, as well as alfalfa hay, carrots, boiled potatoes, and whole wheat bread.

But in case you care, the weather to date has affected neither the bird of paradise nor the two-toed sloth. The b. of p. is again growing his golden, fountainlike tail, as he does each winter, and the t.-t.s still is hanging by his toes.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Never a Dull Moment

WILLIAM I. SIROVICH, EAST SIDE NEW YORK CONGRESSMAN, DIES

New York, Dec. 17 [Special].—William Irving Sirovich, physician and colorful New Deal congressman, died of a heart attack today in his home at 539 East 6th street. He was 57 years old.

William I. Sirovich.

Congressman Sirovich, a bachelor, had represented the 14th district of New York's east side since 1926. From his youth he had been interested in politics, but studied medicine at Columbia university to please his mother. Politics and the practice of medicine mixed readily for him and he asserted proudly that he had treated without pay most of the east side poor who became his constituents. "I made the rich pay for it," he declared.

Play writing was one of his activities, and one of his productions, "Schemers," had a 16 day run on Broadway. He was involved in many controversies with drama critics.

Sirovich was born in York, Pa., the son of Rabbi and Mrs. Jacob Sirovich, who took him to New York when he was 4 years old. He leaves two sisters. Tuesday has been chosen as the tentative date for the funeral.

RUNNER KILLED WITH PILOT AS PLANE CRASHES

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 17 (AP).—Fred J. [Pat] Dengis, 37, national champion marathon runner, and Richard Henry Sohn, 21 year old pilot, were killed today in an airplane crash.

Samuel Shamanski, who witnessed the crash, said the motor sputtered and quit entirely when the plane was about 200 feet off the ground. The plane was banked sharply to avoid a clump of trees, then nosed over and plunged into a field. Both victims were employés of the Glenn L. Martin company, airplane manufacturer.

Dengis was national and Pan-American champion at the marathon distance—26 miles 385 yards—and set a record for the run when he won the national championship for the third consecutive time at Yonkers in November. He had won 13 of his last 15 starts. He was on the American Olympic team in 1936. Sohn was from Lebanon, Pa.

PROBE 2 FINES LEVIED BY GAS STATION JUSTICE

The Will county sheriff's office last night was investigating the circumstances under which two young hunters were fined yesterday by a justice of the peace sitting in his filling station on Governor's highway 2½ miles south of Monee.

The fines were imposed by Justice John J. McGarr on John Modschiedler, 15415 Wood street, and Leroy Kutscher, 15412 Armory street, both of Harvey. They were seized by four men representing themselves as deputy sheriffs as they walked along the Illinois Central railroad tracks. They were charged with trespassing on railroad property. Each was fined $15 and $3 costs.

Deputy Sheriff Gilbert Knater, investigator for Sheriff Joseph J. O'Neill of Will county, said that under the law court cannot be held on Sunday unless the prisoner demands immediate trial, and that the defendants could not be charged with trespassing unless a complaint were signed by the railroad.

Knater also said the complainant in the case, William Stassen, living near Monee, was not known to hold any commission at present, altho he formerly was a special deputy sheriff and special deputy game warden. Knater was unable to learn who were the other three men participating in the arrest.

JOHN F. O'BRIEN, G. A. R. VET, DIES AT 95; ONLY 25 ARE LEFT IN COUNTY

John F. O'Brien, who in 1937 marched in the Memorial day parade, the last member of the Grand Army of the Republic in Cook county to do so, died yesterday in his home at 5259 Monroe street. He was 95 years old.

Born in Lowell, Mass., Mr. O'Brien enlisted in company E, 47th New York infantry, and fought thru the last year and a half of the civil war. He was with Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's army when Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered at Appomattox Courthouse to end the war.

O'Brien arrived in Chicago from his former home in Troy, N. Y., on Oct. 8, 1871, to find the city ablaze. That was the day of the great fire. He worked for many years as a stationary engineer.

A son, Thomas H. O'Brien, with whom the veteran lived, survives. The funeral will be held at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday from the chapel at 5321 Madison street to Resurrection church, 5072 Jackson boulevard. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

MISSING CHILD'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE NEAR HOME

Denville, N. J., Dec. 17 (AP).—The body of Eugene Bauman, 4 years old, object of New Jersey's biggest hunt since the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, was found today wedged in between the pilings of an Indian lake boathouse about a half mile from his home.

Eugene Bauman.

State Trooper Herbert Hunt of the Morristown state police barracks and two Madison Boy Scouts, Albert Johnston, 15, and William Reddert, 14, discovered the body shortly after noon, 48 hours after the youngster had disappeared from his home last Friday.

Dr. Raymond Mutchler, Morris county physician, said death was caused by drowning and there were no marks on the body. He said he would not perform an autopsy.

DE PAUW MARKS ANNIVERSARY OF PHI BETA KAPPA

Greencastle, Ind., Dec. 17 [Special].—The fiftieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the DePauw university chapter of Phi Beta Kappa opened today with a vespers service at which Dr. Walter E. Bundy, head of the department of English Bible and former president of the chapter, gave the address. The program will continue thru tomorrow with speeches by Dr. William E. Hocking of Harvard university and Dr. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago.

Indiana Alpha chapter, which was founded here Dec. 17, 1889, has elected six prominent persons to honorary membership and forty-two alumni to regular membership in connection with the anniversary.

In his vespers address today Dr. Bundy said: "It is indeed appropriate that a program commemorating the founding of the first chapter of this society in the state of Indiana should begin with a service of worship, since in addition to its emphasis on intellectual achievement and brilliance, Phi Beta Kappa has sought to cultivate the broader human values of morality and religion."

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

MR. DIES AND THE NEW DEAL.

The New Dealers who had such cordial relations with the communists are trying to rub out the stigma of Stalin and at the same time to smear the Dies committee. One endeavor is a work of confusion, haste, and embarrassment. The other is of long standing. The Dies committee would not have been so irritating to the White House and the New Deal if its inquiries had not turned up so many communists, fellow travelers, and sympathizers in Washington offices and public places.

When bonds of affection held Moscow and Washington together the Dies committee was offensive to New Deal officialdom because it was exploring the field of soviet activities in American government. When Josef the Red stepped out in character the committee fell deeper into New Deal disfavor. Its investigations became still more embarrassing to the Washington patrons of the bolshevism Stalin was making obnoxious.

Congressional investigating committees seeking to promote New Deal policies and create a class conscious sense of injury have been notorious for their dragooning methods, their lack of consideration for citizens summoned before them, and their disregard of rights and privileges. The precedent for this sort of work was established by the Black inquisition. New Deal inquisitors earned a reputation for their disregard of constitutional rights and for their prejudice in examining witnesses and producing the material which could be distorted to serve their purpose. These were New Deal tactics and they were characteristic of every inquiry set afoot to support the thesis that the Roosevelt dynasty was the only friend the plain people had in the country.

The Dies committee dealing with subversive movements in the United States has not been accused of bullying its witnesses or of denying them their rights. The committee has dealt with many odd fish. Strange characters have been before it, but this is because revolutionary activities over a long period of years in this country have engaged many queer persons. They held authentic position in communist organizations and if their reliability has to be closely examined it is still true that they were the men engaged in the enterprises under investigation.

The persons with whom the communist party worked during its favored period, when the White House was cordial and government offices were open, were of many shades of opinion and of varying degrees of attachment to communist dogma and practice. The term "fellow traveler" was invented to classify and characterize persons who were not members of the communist party but whose economic and political ideas were of a coöperative and helpful nature.

Mr. Browder, the general secretary of the party, who was allowed by the committee to explain in full his position and his activities, described many of the organizations which have New Deal support as "transmission belts." That was his characterization of them and if the New Dealers in trying to smear the Dies committee call it an outrage to bring these organizations into the record they have only to remind themselves that the description came from Mr. Browder himself.

The communist party in the United States within the last 15 or 20 years has had several changes of leadership, has developed numerous schisms, and has expelled for dissent and nonconformity a number of its once important officers. Some of these nonconformists have given their evidence to the Dies committee.

The real growth of the American communist party from an organization of underground cells associated with terrorism into a recognized political party, until recently supporting the New Deal and supported by it, has been entirely within the period of Stalin's coming to absolute personal dictatorship in Russia. The triumph of the great terrorist at home has been timed almost exactly with the success of the American communist party in the New Deal. It has only been in the last two months that to call a fellow traveler a Stalinite was to libel him. Any one who gave countenance to Mr. Browder's party was giving countenance to Josef Stalin.

Stalin had been spread all over the open record for anybody to understand who would read. The birthday felicitations which went from the White House to the Kremlin were given to a character already historically stamped as the greatest assassin of modern times. The Browder party was a Stalin party which denounced other Marxists with a violence reserved for these nonconformists alone. No capitalist ever got the tongue lashing that Mr. Browder's rhetoricians laid upon the anti-Stalin communists. They were the real filth of the world. Any American who played with the American communist party dealt with the Stalinites.

When Josef the Red found that the time had come to throw peace and democracy aside and do what he had been planning to do, the revelations given the public by the Dies committee showing the places of prominence occupied by communists and their sympathizers under New Deal favor became still more embarrassing to the administration and to all the people who had been playing Mr. Browder's game.

If the Dies committee had never existed, if there had been no disclosures of communist progress in this country, it would have been easier for the New Deal retreat from Moscow. There wouldn't have been so much pain and embarrassment in the attempted flight and there wouldn't have been so many faces pink this time, not from a touch of Red but from confusion and shame. The New Deal is not only undertaking a retreat but it is trying to cover the retreat with a more vigorous attack upon the committee which has caused it so much trouble and has given the American public so much information. The people are in a much better position to understand what has been going on in dominating political circles because the Dies committee has been at work. The effort to discredit it has such transparent motives that it is bound to fail.

IMPRACTICAL POLITICS.

Mr. Norman MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Associations, spoke the other day before the Illinois tax forum. Mr. MacDonald's speech was a curious one, if we may judge it from the published summaries. He marched straight toward an inescapable conclusion, but managed to escape it.

The American people are becoming aroused by evidences of graft and inefficiency in their governments, he said. He spoke of Judge Manton and Boss Pendergast. He alluded to the squandering of the taxpayers' money. To counteract such evils, he said, the citizens must organize in self-defense to preserve their homes, their businesses and their liberties.

That's right. But Mr. MacDonald failed to draw the obvious conclusion that if the people of this country don't like the kind of government they are getting from the Democrats, the remedy is not to organize a taxpayers' association, useful as it may be for some purposes, but to take an active part in the affairs of the Republican party in the hope that it will provide an acceptable alternative.

Taxpayers' associations do not choose candidates for public office. Political parties do. The citizen who wants to improve the quality of his government can accomplish far more by joining his ward organization than he can by belonging to a dozen leagues for this and that. If he and those who think like him can gain control of a ward organization they can expect to have a voice in the choice of candidates and, if those candidates are elected, to have some influence over their conduct. Practically speaking, that is the only way that citizens can mold government to their liking.

It is curious that Americans, who have a great and deserved reputation for practicality, are so impractical in matters of politics. The prevailing notion among the so-called good citizens is that participation in partisan affairs is beneath them. The great mass of Americans never dream of contributing to the support of a party; and of those few who do contribute only the fewest will deign to engage in any other way in party activity. The result is that their influence on government is negligible. Tho the number of citizens who want jobs, contracts, or other favors from government is relatively small, and the number who want efficient government is relatively large, it is the friends of waste who normally nominate the candidates and the friends of economy who get nowhere.

The taxpayers' associations, the leagues of women voters, the luncheon clubs, the civil service reform groups, the city clubs, the forums, and round tables all have their usefulness, but it is limited. They generate a vast amount of gas and that's about all as matters stand today. The way to improve administration is to elect honest and competent administrators and the only way to do that is first to nominate them. That is the business of political parties and only of political parties. If the so-called good citizens won't join a political party and work with it they can't expect to get the kind of government they want.

Nobody ever got downtown by walking along Halsted street and nobody ever nominated an alderman by participating in a city club debate. You get downtown by following a street which goes there and you raise the efficiency of government by nominating honest and competent men to office. Citizens who don't belong to a party and don't attempt to participate in its deliberations can blame only themselves if their notions of how government should be conducted are given no heed in the city hall, the state capital, and in Washington.

Editorial of the Day

THEY'VE STOPPED VANISHING.

[Detroit Free Press.]

American Indians are not vanishing, after all, according to the annual report of John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs.

They made last year the largest population gain of any racial group in this country, altho their total population is still only about 352,000.

The number of Indians in North America at the time of the first white settlement has been estimated as high as 3,000,000.

And if that estimate is even approximately correct the Indians have a long way to go before they regain their ancestral numbers.

Commissioner Collier attributes the recent high rate of increase in the Indian population to improved health and economic conditions and higher morale among the tribes.

The fact that more than 50 per cent of the regular employés of the Indian service, and more than 70 per cent of its emergency employés, are Indians speaks well for the ability of the Indians to adapt themselves to the white man's idea of what is good for the descendants of the early owners of this continent.

LADS WHO DINED AT SCHLOGL'S.

Speaking of the famous book shops of an older Chicago [Dec. 13], how come we forgot to mention Covici-McGee's, on Washington street between La Salle and Wells? Here the ancient bookseller's tradition was followed: The firm published the works of Chicago writers, and did much to stimulate authorship here during the so-called "literary renaissance" of the early postwar period. Books by a number of Line contributors were on their list.

Covici-McGee published J. U. Nicolson's "King of the Black Isles," Keith Preston's "Column Poets," Henry Justin Smith's "Deadlines" and "Josslyn," Vincent Starrett's "Ebony Flame" and "Buried Cæsars," Philip R. Davis' "Purple Plectron," Ben Hecht's "1001 Afternoons in Chicago" and "Fantazius Mallare," Ashton Stevens' "Actorviews," Gene Markey's "Men About Town," and "The Sins of St. Anthony," a collection of short stories by a certain newspaper man whose name may be found at the bottom of this column.

These and other ink stained wretches of their time, which seems quite romantic in retrospect, used to meet at Covici-McGee's to see how the market on masterpieces was going, and then march around the corner to Schlogl's, on Wells street, for luncheon or dinner. Ask Richard, then head waiter, now owner, of Schlogl's to show you his collection of autographs of the Chicago literary school, 1918-'25.

CHRISTMAS TREE BLACKOUT.

(Almost anyhere in Europe.)

Now go to sleep, my little one,
Your gas mask hangs by the chimneyside,
They've mounted the antiaircraft gun,
And the way to the cellar is open wide.

Now go to sleep, don't mind the dark;
To sleep in the darkness is safer, far,
For, darling, the tiniest speck of a spark
Might show the bombers where we are.

Your Christmas tree must be blacked out,
And if Santa comes he must be quite dumb,
And you mustn't laugh, and you mustn't shout,
Or we might be crushed by a bursting bomb.

Yes, there are stars in the sky tonight—
High up in the sky there are hosts of them . . .
No, the one in the east that shines so bright
Cannot be the Star of Bethlehem.

It was ages and ages ago, my dear,
The star betokened the Christ Child's birth,
Good will toward men and Christmas cheer,
And peace on earth—and peace on earth.

When It Was Always Fair Weather.

Another story about the golden age in Chicago newspaper life:

Col. William Lightfoot Visscher, verse writer, lecturer, and soldier of fortune in journalism, told me that once he had a desk in a newspaper office next to that of Eugene Field. They were close enough to chat together easily. But Field would write notes to him and solemnly summon a copy boy to deliver them. They would usually run like this:

"Eugene Field presents his compliments to Col. Visscher and accepts his invitation to go out and have a drink." Charles Pierce Burton.

Tale of the Lower Education.

It was discovered that little Mary had worn to school the dainty bloomers that matched her very loveliest party dress. When reprimanded, she replied:

"Well, mother, I've always felt a little frightened when the teacher called on me, but today I sat right up on those silk bloomers and felt as sure as anything." A. E. F.

A NUN AT SANTA MARGARITA.

At Sant' Margarita where the aspens make
A golden way beside the stream
She walks—I die for her sweet sake!
At eve she walks in golden dream,
Her thoughts on God's sweet Son.

She has no earthly thoughts ah, me!
Would I might kiss her feet.
The light swoons 'twixt us, strange to see,
And shafted darts upon her beat,
My love and God's white nun.

Here on this hallowed ground I kneel,
Here prayed she in the shaken light
Of aspens, trees whose quaking leaves can feel
The spirit's torture or delight—
How, my heart knows!

She lifts hers purely to the skies
But I would be of humble earth,
To touch her hand, to kiss her eyes—
This were a kingdom's worth,
O, Love, and heaven's white rose!

How Shakespeare Looks in French.

Speaking of the Auditorium again: On May 26, 1906, Sarah Bernhardt gave one of her numerous "farewell" performances there and the play was "Hamlet." Perhaps you would like a sample of the great soliloquy, "To be or not to be," as Bernhardt spoke it in the French translation by Marcel Schwob and Eugene Morand. Note the rhymes:

Être ou n'être pas, c'est la question.
Que faut-il admirer? La resignation
Submissant tes assauts, Fortune, et tes outrages,
Ou la force luttant contre une mer d'orages.

A Ghost That Never Walked.

The song with the refrain, "I'm the ghost of a troupe that disbanded in Peoria" [Dec. 9], was sung by Eddie Foy in "Piff, Paff, Pouff," a musical comedy staged in 1904. Book by Stanislas Stange, lyrics by William Jerome, music by Jean Schwartz. Others in the cast were Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Fred Mace, Alice Fischer, and Grace Cameron. The title of the song was "The Ghost That Never Walked." Mac of Detroit.

It's the week before Christmas, and the goose hangs high.—Which means the bird for the Christmas feast, in the olden days, was hanging out in the cold somewhere, high up where it could not be reached by marauding animals, and was also getting "high," or acquiring that gamey flavor. This is to settle the hash of the "goose honks high" school of thought.

CRUDE COD LIVER OIL FOR WOUNDS.

IN the 16th century Ambrose Paré, the great French army surgeon, treated wounds with boiling oil. This cruel procedure later gave way to antiseptics—chemicals designed to destroy germs. But the search for the ideal healing agent has persisted and will do so for years to come.

The suggestion that crude cod liver oil would prove helpful has led to extensive research. In addition, an attempt has been made to explain just why this substance is so beneficial. It has been found that badly diseased tissues, when immobilized [so as to prevent movement] and subjected to the oil régime, will recover more rapidly than under any other plan. Leg ulcers and other lesions yield kindly even with the victims up and about, carrying on their work. The oil forms a painless, nonirritating coating which protects the delicate growing cells.

Just why is this material so useful? Careful studies have shown that olive and linseed oils, as well as liquid paraffin, are entirely devoid of bacteria killing properties. Nevertheless they accomplish some good and they prevent air from reaching the raw surfaces. Drying is thus checked. But when certain organisms are bathed with cod liver oil, vicious streptococci, for example, lose their vitality within three hours and become harmless. Under similar conditions, when liquid paraffin is employed, the microbes are alive and active two weeks later.

An investigation by Lichtenstein of Edinburgh disclosed that liquid paraffin has no influence on bacteria 35 days after the beginning of the experiment; while olive oil killed some forms within 7 to 10 days. Cod liver oil, on the other hand, annihilated them within a few hours. When this latter preparation was exposed to ultraviolet light its lethal efficacy was greatly increased. In fact, within 60 minutes certain pus forming bacteria were completely inert.

There seems to be little doubt that the striking consequences obtained with this dressing are due, in part at least, to its bacteria weakening ability. Furthermore, it is soothing and supplies the cells with vitamins and some nourishment.

The case is reported of a 10 year old girl who developed an ulcer on the right lower leg. Because of the foul pus that poured out in great quantities, it was necessary to change the bandages several times daily. Finally the bone became involved, requiring surgical removal of a substantial portion. Every device designed to stimulate repair was used. Finally, crude cod liver oil was applied and within two weeks the tissues assumed a healthy appearance. The temperature disappeared and a month later complete closure occurred.

A man of 32 suffered a gunshot wound in the thigh in a hunting accident and later a severe infection of the bone ensued. Several months in the hospital failed to restore health and amputation was advised. It was finally decided to resort to the oil and 12 days thereafter the entire area was progressing normally. The use of refined cod liver oil was not nearly so effective. With the resumption of the crude type, however, improvement was again accelerated and, within a month, he left the hospital with no sign of trouble.

Some authors have suggested that the crude oil be combined with wool fat [lanolin]. In skin lesions, this composition has been most satisfactory. One physician writes of a series of 21 varicose ulcers which had existed for some time. Each of these patients had been subjected to other well known methods with but fair results. The response to the above mixture was prompt.

Apparently the refining process takes away some essential property possessed by the dark product. At any rate trials are continuing and reports of its use in osteomyelitis are most encouraging.

JUMBLED REPLY.

On Saturday, Dec. 16, a question concerning the taking of iron was answered. The line referring to air swallowing did not belong in this reply. We republish the question and answer in correct form:

M. R. writes: Why does iron—either in pill or liquid form—cause my feet and arms to become numb, my eyes red, and my whole system groggy? I must take this substance as a tonic.

REPLY.

Your symptoms are probably due to some condition wholly unrelated to the taking of iron. A diet rich in iron-containing foods may be of some value.

NONE.

C. B. writes: Does the sun shining on the body thru an ordinary window pane offer any benefit at all?

REPLY.

None except heat. Glass filters out most of the ultraviolet rays.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Dec. 18, 1914.

[143d day of world war; 109th day of present war.]

BERLIN.—The people of Berlin are exultant over yesterday's victory of the Austro-German troops over the Russians in Poland. Terrific fighting was reported at Lodz, with a loss of 160,000 Germans killed, wounded, and prisoners, and 120,000 Russians. The Russian offensive against Silesia and Posen has completely broken down.

LONDON.—According to a dispatch, King Gustave of Sweden left Stockholm for Malmo to meet the kings of Norway and Denmark for a conference regarding the war.

LONDON.—A raid on the British coast at Hartlepool, Scarborough, and Whitby by German cruisers sank two British destroyers. Prince Von Bulow, former imperial German chancellor and now ambassador to Italy, commented yesterday in Rome: "This is simply the prelude to what the German fleet is soon to undertake. It may astonish the world."

VAALS, Holland.—Germans claim enough food for five years of war. Meat is cheaper than before the war began. There is sugar enough to last two and a half years.

FOR DEMOCRATS ONLY.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Is it possible for a Republican to be regarded as a citizen?

Here is a letter received from Edward A. Kelly of the 3d congressional district in reply to a request for information regarding census enumerator work:

"Acknowledgment is made of your letter regarding your desire for appointment as a census enumerator. In reply please be advised all applicants for employment as enumerators under the 1940 census must contact their ward committeeman, as these position will all be handled thru the wards, in direct contact with the mayor's office."

Mr. Kelly, have you ever known it to be possible for a Republican primary voter to contact with success his Democratic committeeman? Bold and brazen is this commitment on the part of our congressional representative.

My advice to any one seeking census enumerating work or any other work for the government is to forget it and sit and wait. Perhaps Mr. Kelly and his type will some day be defeated. E. T.

ELECTION FRAUD CLEAN-UP.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Good citizens, Republicans and Democrats, are in one accord in approving the "clean-up" in elections which Judge Jarecki, the grand juries and the district attorneys are doing. The investigations and convictions will have a wholesome effect on the next election and will go a long way toward strengthening American democracy.

The results thus far have convinced me that my letter to this column during the last election was fully justified. In that letter I contended that some precinct captains were doing uncanny things to "carry" their precincts. I also stated that they were getting their orders from higher up.

I note that in almost every conviction the precinct captains, Democrat and Republican, have been "in" on the deal in some way. More power to the courts.

NO STARVING IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 12.—The recent publicity in the columns of THE TRIBUNE and other papers regarding the so-called relief crisis in Cleveland causes me to wonder what prompts Roosevelt and Hand Out Harold Ickes to start sniping at the Ohio governor.

As a resident of Cleveland, I wish to inform your readers that the relief situation is being magnified.

Business has improved and unemployment is fast disappearing. Thanks to some level headed Republican executives, our Community Chest is 97 per cent subscribed and as far as the people of Cleveland are concerned there is no one starving or freezing in our city.

JAMES K. NORTON.

RUSSIA IN OUR SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—For the information of "An Appreciative Parent" our Chicago schools are not free from communistic propaganda. Recently, at the Carl Schurz High school, a motion picture of Russian agricultural workers was shown—the idea was to impress upon the young minds of our school children the fact that the Russian standard of living was better than what we enjoy here.

Every American should know by this time that the communistic government of Russia is rotten to the core. I have instructed my daughter to leave the room if a repetition of the above takes place.

A DOCTOR'S ITEMIZED BILL.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—I have been amused by several letters relative to the physicians itemizing their bills.

I wonder if any of the arguers for itemized bills has thought that if they will entrust their health or the health of their loved ones to their physicians—a responsibility which might mean life or death—they should trust that same physician with the few paltry dollars. But if not worthy of both of these trusts you had better hunt some one more trustworthy.

I have practiced medicine in Chicago since 1907. During these years I have been asked for an itemized bill [by living debtors] once only. That was in 1908, when, after sewing up a rather long scalp wound for an Iowa attorney, he took me somewhat to task for asking him $25 for my fee. He asked for an itemized bill, and remembering the story about the plumber's bill, I made out my bill as follows: "To preparing and suturing scalp wound, $5. To applying knowledge of how best to prepare and suture scalp wound, acquired by 12 years' grammar and high schools, three years' academic study at university, four years' study at medical college, and five years' experience in practice—$20. Total, $25." He paid the bill and later sent me another patient.

I am sure I voice the sentiments of a large majority of people when I say, if you cannot trust your physician with both your health and the amount of his fee without question or quibble, you better hunt up one whom you can so trust.

I. S. T.

FRANTIC MR. ICKES.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Mr. Ickes' estimate of the possible Republican candidates disclosed in his speech Monday in Hoboken is refreshing. It shows clearly that the world's greatest squanderer is frantically trying to hold on to his job for another term or two.

Hopeful Harold wants four or eight years more of Roosevelt and him. He would also like to name the Republican candidate, who, in his opinion, will be a "push-over" for his boss, Mr. Roosevelt.

F. M. KEELY.

A LINE FROM THE STOCK SHOW.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—The officers and directors of the International Live Stock exposition join me in expressing appreciation for the splendid support THE TRIBUNE gave to the 1939 International Live Stock exposition, which closed last Saturday with new record peaks for both attendance and number of exhibits.

B. H. HEIDE.

EASY TO SUPPORT.

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 14.—I wish the politicians in the Republican party would give the Republican workers and voters somebody easy to work for at the coming primary. Dewey for President, and Green for governor. They would be easy to sell, because of the splendid records they have made. A VOTER.

EXPLOITS OF A MOOSE.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—That one about the deer horn in the Christmas tree reminds one of other good ones from up north, like the one about the fellows who were fishing in Minnesota. They were out in a canoe, on one of the many lakes, when a moose came swimming along. One of the fellows, being a cowboy and having his lariat along, lassooed the moose, which, feeling the rope around its neck, gave a good jerk, upsetting the canoe and swimming away with it, leaving the men to get to shore as well as they could.

That winter the same men were hunting in the same neighborhood, and they were startled by a great rustle in the brush. Investigating, they found this same moose dragging along the canoe in which was riding a baby moose.

EIGHT YEARS IS ENOUGH.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Eight years is enough for one family. Our forefathers came over here to get away from monarchy. They made this a country to be ruled by the people.

We get no news from the White House about who shall run on the Democratic ticket.

Every one knows the President has the say about who shall run. Can it be he has a new plan, that if he does not run himself he will insist that his wife or his son be nominated to keep the family in control?

I say: Elect some one else, be it a Democrat or a Republican.

AN AMERICAN.

Common Sense Is Effective in Losing Weight

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It's a funny thing about us women, the way we grab hold of a new diet fad and take it to our hearts with almost senseless enthusiasm.

We don't think any unusual diet should be followed without consulting a physician. But to the average overweight person there is no harm in cutting down on the food intake a little, refraining from eating too much of the kind of fattening foods that are not necessary for nutrition, and adhering to the simple way of living.

Do not reduce below the weight at which you feel and look your best, and approach your reducing from a sane, logical viewpoint. Keeping the bowels properly regulated is important, especially while reducing. Drink lots of water, but not while chewing your food. Chew your food thoroly, not only for digestion's sake, but because you will not eat so much food if it is eaten slowly. Do not eat between meals, unless you eat an apple, orange, or drink fruit juice.

While reducing, and to retain the weight loss after you've reduced to your desired poundage, rule out alcoholic beverages entirely. If you have not time to indulge in active exercise, try to walk a brisk three miles daily.

Urges Dancing with Mate to Gain Harmony

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

You are familiar, of course, with the old joke about being able to dance with every one but your wife.

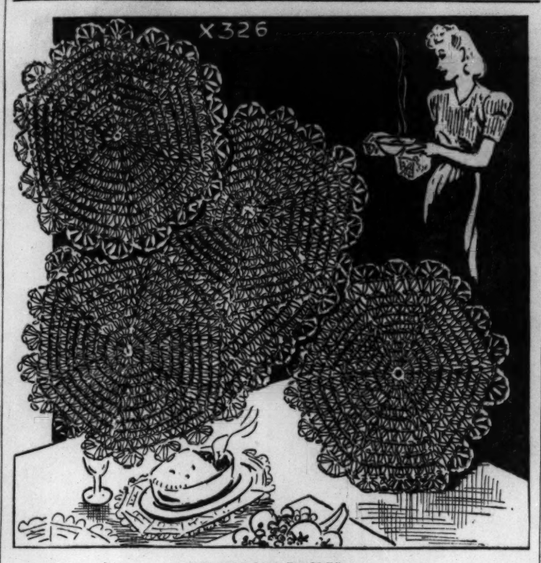
Yet dancing with one's wife is exactly what the charming Mary Raye of the dancing team of Raye and Naldi suggests should be done. The coöperation necessary in dance steps is good training for marital harmony.

"One must know the reactions of the other in all matters, large or small," Miss Raye argues, "the better to adapt one's self. A certain amount of this can be done before marriage if the couple do a variety of things together, whereby idiosyncrasies of the partner are discovered."

It is not enough just to discover them, we're told, but they must be correlated in the mind. If your intended doesn't like something that you think is important to your happiness, then is the time to plan your action. Anyway, you should ask if it is going to get on your nerves and cause friction later on. It's the small things that seem so important after marriage, says Mary, when the pair are together all the time. No wife or husband after marriage likes to be left out of projected activities.

"It doesn't have to be dancing really," Miss Raye admits, "to strengthen the bond. Any work or recreation shared will do."

Crocheted Mats for Dishes



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Steaming platters and hot dishes leave no marks when polished surfaces are protected by these pretty mats. They are crocheted of heavy cord, using a simple stitch, and are made in sets of three, an oblong one for platters and smaller mats for vegetable dishes or plates. When these are crocheted of fine, mercerized cotton, asbestos pads may be used underneath them for greater protection.

For instructions in crocheting the hot dish mats, No. X-326, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Start Library for Your Child This Christmas

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If you haven't already done so, start a library for your child this Christmas. It may consist of just one shelf especially set aside for his own books, but it will be his library, and the nucleus of a growing collection.

Nor does it matter how young he may be. The littlest child can enjoy a book and enjoy owning it.

For owning a book establishes a relationship between the book and the reader quite different from the one which borrowing a book creates.

The public library is a wonderful thing—a privilege and a blessing to thousands. The children's rooms alone would justify its existence, as any one must feel who has seen, for instance, an 8 year old in worn clothes pull forward a tow headed, big eyed little lad with the introduction I once heard, "Teacher, dis is me brudder. He wants to join de lib'r'y"; or who's seen the absorbed faces bent over picture books, or watched accustomed young hands take a book from long shelves and scan it to see if it strikes a responding chord.

But owning a book is different. And those parents who complain that their children never read and don't like books, are I suspect, not aware of this fact. Perhaps they don't own books themselves. Perhaps they have never thought of buying a book for their children, or if they've gotten so far as thinking about it, have decided that it would be a waste of money, and besides, that the children would soil or tear it.

Such is not the case. Children who are introduced to books by parents who have a respect for them, don't mark and soil and tear their books. Their chief difficulty when very young consists of turning the pages deftly, without tearing. Otherwise they are quite fit to own books and treat them intelligently.

One great aid to a young child's enjoyment of books and to his easy handling of them is a broad low table on which he can spread them out, and a sturdy chair which fits up against the table. For young children like to pore over each page and every detail in each picture, in comfort, without having to hold and manage the book on their laps—this particularly because many books for the youngest are large.

We have directions for making a small chair and table for two, three, and four year olds. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Food for Needy to Be Admission to Movies Thursday Morning

Those who want to see a movie and help Chicago's needy at the same time will have an opportunity to do so Thursday morning at various outlying picture houses. They won't have to pay cash for admission. All they'll have to do is to bring one or more articles of nonperishable foods. This offer is made only for morning shows. The charity affair is sponsored by Chicago Motion Picture exhibitors. The chairman is W. K. Hollander, advertising manager for Balaban & Katz. The food will be distributed thru women's clubs, churches, and other organizations to thousands of families.

Feminine Sculptured Lingerie

WOMAN'S AND MISS' LINGERIE.

Two things lingerie must be this season: feminine and sculptured to the figure. The new trend in styles demands both qualifications, and this pattern follows this "law" to the letter. It fashions a slip, panties, and brassiere, styled according to your own demands. The sketch shows that the creations may be either very plain or much trimmed. Lace and ruffling both play important rôles, but the main feature is that these garments never will show a bulge beneath your snugly fitted frocks.

Style No. 3105 is designed for sizes, 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 6 yards of ruffling for slip; 1 yard of 35 inch for panties, with 4½ yards of ruffling.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the fall and winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Swedish Chorus Sings 'Messiah': Outdoes Itself

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The great Swedish Choral club, 30 strong, came to Orchestra hall yesterday for its annual Christmas presentation of Handel's "Messiah." Soloists were Esther Hart, soprano; Helen Bartush, contralto; Joseph Laderoute, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. Men from the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Stanley Martin, organist, played accompaniments and interludes. Harry T. Carlson conducted.

The choral singing had a simplicity and a candor about it which went far to account for the sublimity of the general effect. Mr. Carlson has never been one to work for tricky tone colorings or attention getting phrase contours, but yesterday his chorus outdid even its former self in the matter of natural, and therefore hugely expressive, singing.

Climaxes, when they came, had an unstudied grandeur about them. It was plain that the mounting emotion in the words and the music was enkindling the singers and that the building up of these great tone masses was taking place naturally. To preserve such priceless sincerity and yet not sacrifice line and precision, is very great art indeed.

Miss Hart's "Rejoice Greatly" suffered somewhat thru lack of agility, but her slower airs, notably in "Come Unto Him," were delivered majestically and with great beauty of tone. Mr. Laderoute, Canadian tenor who made his Chicago debut only 10 days ago, was suave and likeable, albeit a wee bit too sweet and sentimental sometimes in the matter of voice colorings and phrasings.

Miss Bartush refused to let herself become intoxicated by the rhythm of "O Thou That Tellest," and conductor and orchestra had more or less to pull her along. The impression of faith and confidence which her round, rich voice later conveyed more than made up for such early lacks, although the overly fastidious might accuse her of overdoing the pathos of "He Was Despised."

Mark Love sang his "Why Do the Nations?" in a bravura manner and drew what was probably the afternoon's biggest burst of applause.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

There are about as many beauty hits on the market as there are stars in the sky. Our job is to pick the standouts, from the point of price, practicality and quality.

One of this year's blue ribbons should go to a handsome bag 15 inches long, 10 inches wide and 5 inches deep. It's a swell looking piece of hand luggage, luxurious looking, light in weight, compact and unusually spacious. That spaciousness makes a big hit with us.

This bag that offers us this marvelous space is in rich, polished alligator grain, either black, brown, or blond. The blond is a knockout. Lining is beige moire.

Cosmetics—nine of them—are in a removable tray that takes up small space. There are three creams—cleansing, emollient and foundation—plus skin freshener and hand lotion. Also a bottle of cologne—a fine idea, if ever there was one for the train ride. There are rouge, powder and lipstick, too.

Every item is snug in the tray and the latter also boasts a separate hinged compartment for odds and ends. Creams and powder are in plastic screw top jars and there are two silk envelope cases, one for tissues, one with rubberized lining for soap and washcloth. There is also a big mirror with pockets on either side for more little gadgets.

Below and beside this tray there is space for clothing. Plenty of it. For this, as well as its other charms, we love it dearly. And it's a bargain!

Young Chicago Faces Gayest Holiday Season

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE mail of every one in "the pretty world," young and old, is filled these days not only with Christmas greeting cards but with invitations to various sorts of parties. Never has Chicago seen more entertaining in a single season than it has during this one, and the holiday season, which may be said to have started yesterday, for many of the girls and boys arrived at home from school then, is going to be the gayest, most hectic ever.

There will be something happening every moment for the debutantes and their beaux and the subdebs and their masculine contemporaries. Only their parents will have any free time at all and they undoubtedly will spend that trying to see their children as they dash from one party to another.

Parents Plan Family Trips to See Italian Art.

Numerous parents are planning to spend one evening this week taking their sons and daughters to see the Italian exhibition at the Art institute, which is to be open every night this week thru Friday. So many requests were received by the institute asking that the Italian masterpieces be available at night that it was arranged that the galleries would be open from the 14th thru the 22d. So few people came on the first two nights, however, that it is doubtful if the institute will find it advisable to have another period of evening showings after this one is finished. It depends entirely upon the public's response, of course.

Tonight the first of a series of programs arranged to take place during the evenings that the exhibition is on view will be given at 8:30 o'clock. Joseph Bentonelli, lyric tenor of the Chicago City Opera company, will sing a program of early music and operatic arias from the grand staircase. A single charge of 25 cents will be made at the front door, which will admit a visitor to the Italian galleries, to Half a Century of American Art and to the south painting galleries on the second floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick are giving a small dinner for Mr. Bentonelli at their home in Lake View avenue preceding the concert. Several others are planning dinner parties in the institute tea rooms.

Mrs. Shedd 86 Today; Relatives to Call.

The only birthday celebration that Mrs. John G. Shedd will have today will be a quiet visit from the members of her family who are in town as this beloved and popular woman of 86 is not feeling up to a party. Her daughter, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, and two granddaughters, Mrs. John Peale Bent [Mary Reed] and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III. [Jean Schweppe] will pay their respects to Mrs. Shedd and so will one of her two grandsons, John Shedd Schweppe. The other John Shedd Reed, is away.

Young Mr. Schweppe, who was graduated at Harvard last June, is studying medicine at Northwestern university. His cousin, who was graduated with high honors from the Sheffield scientific school at Yale university last June, is following his ambition to become a railroad man. Mr. Reed is learning the business the active way, or, as one might say, from the road up. He is testing engines and equipment with the Santa Fe, traveling all over the west. He paused long enough to telephone his mother last week that he won't be here for Christmas, which is a disappointment to the family, of course.

Italy America Society to See Children's Party.

Miss Clara Lake has arranged an entertaining program for members of the Italy America society and their guests this morning at the Arts club. Little children of the Assunta school, directed by Camilla Petitti, will give a Christmas play in Italian, singing old Italian cradle songs. John Panegasser, tenor, will assist the children. Luncheon will be served after the program.

Marx and Anne Oberndorfer will give their annual Christmas carol program at the Little Traveler, in Geneva, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The

Gay Shoppers Start the Final Holiday Rush

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There's enough music around the town to turn the entire crowd into beaming spenders. Inside, Christmas carols; outside, the same cheerfully tootled by the various bands and loudspeakers. In the shops and stores, the most amiable crowds of the year, from high-hat dowagers to the youngsters home from school and the htousands of laggard shoppers who descend on the town for the last wild gift roundup.

Lots of cautious souls shop early. Some rather terrifying individualists start gift shopping the day after Christmas for the next year. Others snag the illusive Christmas gift during the sultry days of August. But we'll string along with this last minute multitude. It has more fun and atmosphere.

There's plenty of loot to tempt your generosity, from luxury items to festively fashioned necessities. The last of new arrivals are here, unpacked and out for inspection. Blazing with color, gold braid, and sequins, are the most beautiful gift buys of the year. Handbags and evening bags, for instance. Some huge, shimmering Christmas ball affairs will positively take your breath away. These snap open and show the fancy lining. They can't be equaled for capacity or decoration! Also new are the music box street handbags, bags of brown or black suede with a hidden song, a song while you spend idea! Small girls will be delighted with small copies of these grownup models.

Gift hosiery is another suggestion for the last minute buyers. See the especially boxed gifts—three, six, or a dozen with a special price for quantity. Or the lovely sandal hosiery, the heels and toes of lacy mesh; the incredibly smooth and flawless beauties called "satin skin"; or the stunning, very sophisticated silver fox stockings looking exactly what they are called.

Other glittering baubles will be found in the belt assortments; everything from bejeweled, barbaric, wide affairs to the twinkling narrow dress parade belts of rhinestones. Colored suedes matched to handbags are new in unusual shades of tangerine, citron, gage green, purple, gold, and dove gray. Wide, soft circles with huge covered buckles make these finds practical yet decorative and most acceptable gifts for the career girl.

Last minute arrivals in the jacket collections offer everything from the beauties made of embroidered Chinese brocades to the quilted velvets in every color with a small, coquetish muff to match.

Robinson Crusoe, Dramatized Version.

Our challenge to Orson Welles to dramatize Robinson Crusoe was tardy. It already has been done.

Russell Thomas, instructor in the humanities at the University of Chicago, says a version was produced at Drury Lane theater in 1781, and the author, according to contemporary news accounts, was Richard Brinsley Sheridan, then manager of Drury Lane.

"The version was a pantomime, in two parts," Mr. Thomas said, "but the first part was a perfectly serious account of Crusoe's adventures, and the antics of Harlequin Friday were reserved for part two. A published text of the dramatic version (with songs!) appeared a few years later."

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard speeds west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon is rich in gold. He picks up two strange companions, Mrs. Sebastian, who owns a Mexican roadhouse, and Louis Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. In a lonely spot they come upon the pay car of the Golconda mine—all occupants murdered, and three hold-up men still on the scene. They chase Leonard's car with a machine gun. Mestres drops tacks in the road and stops their pursuit. He recognizes one bandit as the mine's paymaster Paul Collins, crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore and gives him a false report. He enlists the aid of another rascal, Kent, to cheat Dillon. Dillon breaks the sad news to Pat, an orphaned girl who owns an old hotel, and who had staked him, then goes off to collect his tools. At Pat's hotel Leonard sees the girl slip out in the night with a gun. Distrusting Kent, Collins sends two hirelings to follow Dillon and locate his claim. Kent, suspicious, puts Papago, an old watchman, on the trail. Taylor, the Golconda's paymaster, arranges with Kent to have Leonard blamed for his crime. In Collins' office Pat finds the correct report on Dillon's ore, but Kent and Collins find her there. Kent kidnaps the girl in his car—her old Chinese servant clings to the spare tire. Leonard goes to see Mrs. Sebastian and walks into a trap set to capture him. Mestres is hobnobbing with one of the bandits and Mrs. Sebastian pretends not to know him. Leonard escapes only to accept a lift from Kent and be turned over to the Mexican police, but Mestres rescues him. Mestres gets a trusted guide, Plutarcho, to sneak Leonard across the line. As they pass the building where Kent had placed Pat they are hailed by the Chinese servant. It is a marijuana den, run by an outlawed doctor and his wife, Anna. Fearing exposure they plan to kill the girl. Leonard and his companions break into the building just in time to save her. Leonard and Pat set out to find Dillon. Kent and Collins also set out, separately, on Dillon's trail. Collins finds Dillon and kills him. Kent witnesses the murder. Coming upon Leonard they accuse him of the deed.

INSTALMENT XXXI.

AN OVERPLAYED HAND.

Leonard answered Kent's question with another.

"What motive have you got to suggest?" Leonard was looking at Collins when he said it, and he saw the light that came into the assayer's eyes, like the gleam in the eyes of a cornered animal.

"What are you waiting for?" Collins demanded thickly. "Why don't you kill him?"

Kent laughed quietly. "There's plenty of time."

He gave Collins a sidelong glance. It was filled with malevolence, his voice was tinged with a faint contempt as he went on.

"I've an idea it might be better to let the law take care of him."

He turned his regard to the prisoner once more, and he seemed to be trying to read Leonard's thoughts.

"How did you manage to get away from the Mexican police?" he asked. Leonard smiled.

"I've friends," Leonard said. "They know why I came here and where I am. If anything happens to me they'll see that the facts come out sooner or later."

Collins made an impatient movement and Kent shook his head. The poisonous look came into his eyes again. He nodded at Leonard, and he said.

"They'll find everything in order. The authorities will handle you, my friend." Kent was speaking softly. "I don't know which authorities. They have a habit of trading prisoners across the line, you understand. I imagine it will be the Mexicans. They do these things with less formality than we use."

Collins' sigh was distinctly audible. The fear was leaving his eyes. Leonard was silent, his face was without expression. There was less than six feet between himself and Kent. And he was sure that the latter was unused to handling firearms. If he were to yield to the impulse which was strong within him and to put his life in the balance, like a good gambler who makes a bold bet at the crucial moment, the chances were slightly in his favor. He could span the distance in a stride, the first shot would probably go wild, and before there was time for another he would probably have hold of the weapon.

But there was Pat to consider. Even if he were to come thru the struggle which would follow, and to overcome the odds, with Collins leaping on him from behind, the sound of the shot would be more than likely to bring her down here. He could afford to risk himself but he must do whatever he did without incurring any danger for her.

"What I'd like to know," Kent said, "is how he found his way here?"

There was something different in his manner now: the change had taken place since he had spoken about the method of trading prisoners, which was still being practiced by the authorities of remote districts. It was as if, with him, Leonard no longer entered into consideration as a living being.

Leonard said, "Dillon was my friend. I came here because he wrote me."

Kent shrugged his shoulders. "I wonder," he murmured, "if that is true." He held his head on one side as if he were listening. He stood thus for some moments, but if there had been any sound, it had ceased already. He turned abruptly to the assayer.

"You know the way to the old mine?" And Collins answered.

"It's on the ridge somewhere. There's got to be a trail."

"I suppose," Kent went on after a few seconds, "we could find it in the moonlight," and as the other started to interrupt, he shook his head impatiently. "We can't waste time now. How about it?"

"What are we going to do with him?" Collins demanded.

"O, he'll keep until we get back," Kent said smoothly. "You can find some rope in your car perhaps?"

There was a curious attitude between these two. Leonard had noticed it from the beginning, and it was more pronounced now. As if they were constantly watching each other. As if Kent were holding two prisoners, and Collins was one of them. And—it was this which puzzled Leonard most—as if the fact was very much to Kent's liking. The man exuded a sort of unnatural satisfaction. He was as motionless as a fat spider, waiting in the center of its web, ready to dart out and seize a fly that was buzzing helplessly in the strands. And Collins was the fly. Not Leonard.

The assayer hesitated, he looked from one of the men to the other. Kent said,

"You're not afraid he's going to proposition me, are you? You needn't let that worry you."

Collins started to answer, but thought better of it. He turned away and went up the canyon.

"Any objection to my sitting down?" Leonard asked.

"You'll be sitting down quite a while before we're back," Kent reminded him quietly. He sighed heavily. "That fellow doesn't like me."

"I don't wonder." Leonard shrugged his shoulders. Then he added, "You saw him commit the murder."

"That," Kent told him, "won't do, my friend. I saw you commit the murder."

"And because you saw him," Leonard went on evenly, "you've got him where you want him. But you're overplaying your hand."

"I never overplay my hand." Kent's voice was filled with assurance but there was a shadow in his eyes.

"Either way this thing works out," Leonard reminded him, "it's going to come to the same end. There are plenty of people who know where I am, and why I came here. And the companies I work for have lots of influence in the City of Mexico. That ley de fuego isn't going to hide the truth for a week."

"I suppose," Kent suggested, "your advice is that I turn you loose." Leonard shrugged his shoulders.

"I'll take my chances with the Mexican police," Kent went on smoothly. "If there's any mistake made, they'll be the ones that make it. It will be—another regrettable border incident."

Thereafter they stood in silence, watching each other. And when Collins returned with a coil of lashing rope over his arm, Kent said,

"We'll take him over to the tree."

At his command Leonard went before the two of them. He made no remonstrance when they bade him sit down before the solitary ironwood, he placed one foot on either side of the trunk and thrust his arms forward. Kent stood over him while Collins tied the knots. The ravens in the branches above him, croaked in protest against the disturbance of their rest. The siender rope drew tightly over his ankles and wrists, he was leaning forward, the bonds on one side of the trunk, his body on the other, and before the tying was completed, his back already ached with the strain of bending.

Leonard was sitting with his legs stretched before him. His back was bent in a tight arc. His arms reached out straight to their full length. The ropes which held him in this position were thin and hard. They bit into his flesh, resisting the strain of his body as a bowstring resists the pull of the curved bow.

Only his head could move, and when he turned it ever so slightly he added to his torture. They had placed him so that he was facing Dillon's body. It lay a few yards away from the tree which held him.

He did not know how long he had been there, time was distorted by pain, it held no relation to his suffering. The sweat which had bathed his body was dried. His mouth was arid, his lips were already cracked, his tongue was swelling. And the pain was always present; it never left him for a moment.

But he had one comfort. It was like a companion, whispering into his ear, reminding him of its presence. These two had gone, and they did not know that Pat had come with him. He had accomplished that.

It was his last coherent thought. It faded out and flickered into strange, twisted wanderings, his mind was slipping away from his tortured body. His senses were playing queer tricks.

The little patch of earth within his span of vision was moving. The crosses were weaving in and out like the dancers in a silent quadrille; the dead form which had been lying so still among them was rising, it left the dry earth and hovered above them.

Then he became conscious of a voice. It was present, but he could not place it. There were moments when it seemed close by, and just as he was beginning to recognize it, it floated away it was receding further and there was no recognition now.

Boys of New York Tenement Area Tune Up for Carol Singing

New York, Dec. 17 (Special).—There is much activity down on New York's lower east side these days as the young members of the Gramercy Park Boys' club tune themselves up for their annual stint of singing Christmas carols. And it's an unusual sight. The Gramercy Park Boys' club is in the heart of the "gashouse" district. It is surrounded by tenements and has been described as "the only garden spot in the whole vicinity." The club provides recreation, vocational guidance classes, and art and sculpture instruction for more than 1,100 boys in the neighborhood.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

year at Columbia stipulates a minimum budget of $600,000 per flicker. . . . Most impressive of newsreel shots is that of the Finnish ambassador telling off Russia [and audiences cheer him]. . . . Movie extras will be titled to $11 per day, instead of $5.50 to $8.25 when the Screen Actors' guild starts reclassifying them tomorrow.

"Gone With the Wind" can gross $17,000,000 if it plays to the same number of admissions that "Boys Town" played to in this country. It is a problem in simple mathematics: "Boys Town" played to 22,000,000 persons at an average admission price of 30 cents. "Gone With the Wind" will average an 80 cent admission. Sit down and figure it out for yourself. Incidentally, the picture is so good that every studio in town is postponing picture releases, because they don't want to compete against it for this year's Academy award. . . . While on the subject of mathematics, it might be pointed out that "Wizard of Oz" has taken in more than 2 million dollars in the country to date.

Interesting at this point of the year to check up on the various studios and see what they accomplished from December, 1938, to December, 1939. The Hollywood Reporter poll of movie correspondents each month reveals that Warners scored with five pictures. The Warner pictures voted best were "Dawn Patrol," "Dark Victory," "Juarez," "Elizabeth and Essex" and "We Are Not Alone." M-G-M's top pictures were "Goodbye Mr. Chips," "Wizard of Oz" and Selznick's "Gone With the Wind." Zanuck has these for a pair: "Young Mr. Lincoln" and "Stanley and Livingstone." RKO contributed "Gunga Din"; Columbia had the impressive "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and Wanger won with "Stagecoach."

Ilona Massey, as the result of her fine work in "Balalaika," will be given straight dramatic rôles. This easily is Nelson Eddy's finest performance incidentally. . . . The week was crowded with previews and openings. Only disappointment, I thought, was the static "Hunchback of Notre Dame" with Charles Laughton's grotesque makeup tiresome instead of frightening. Maureen O'Hara is swell in it. She's got plenty on the ball. . . . The Earl Carroll show folded over the week-end, after a long run. . . . "Grapes of Wraith" is set for a February release. . . . Add oddities: Concern that manufactures the Academy awards is owned by Ray Dodge, former Illinois A. C. half miler. He teamed with Joey Ray years ago on a world running tour. . . . Because every one has teased Music Corporation of America for not offering any music at its Beverly Hills headquarters, they'll broadcast Christmas carols, starting today. . . . Al Ritz being treated for stomach ulcers. . . . The Basil Rathbone St. Moritz party will offer sleigh riding, snow, and ice skating, luxuries out here.

"Gulliver's Travels," Filmed in Florida, to Be Screened Today

Miami, Fla., Dec. 17 (AP).—Capt. Gulliver, a literary hero for 200 years, makes his bow tomorrow as a movie star.

The world première of the sound and color, feature-length cartoon, "Gulliver's Travels," produced at a cost of $1,500,000 in the new Fleischer studio in Miami, is slated to appear in two theaters, both sellouts.

At one, the audience will include a group which paid $100 a plate at a charity dinner where favors were tickets to see the fantasy of Gulliver in Lilliputland.

Altho the film unfolds in 77 minutes, it required a year of work and some 1,000,000 drawings.

The Housewife

One of the most practical of the new aids for the busy cook is a fine big pair of flowered, quilted percale mitts. They are roomy and easy to slip on and off. They are designed to prevent those painful burns that happen so often when you go fishing about in an oven. Your hands won't feel the heat, at all, in these mits. Pull out the roaster, or lift the cover of a sizzling pot—your fingers are protected by the thickness of the mitts.

A pretty little apron is made to match and is equipped with big pockets to hold the mitts when they're not in use. Get these items singly, or together in any one of four attractive colors. They are not a bit expensive.

carols will be sung by Mr. Oberndorfer's Civic Music association's male quartet from the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum. None of the singers is more than 10 years old. Ten little boys are trained for the singing each winter to be sure that four are available without sniffles.

Mrs. Nelson Morris Appears in Petit Lundi Today.

Mrs. Nelson Morris, who has recovered from the illness which caused the postponement of the Petit Lundi last week, will appear in the scheduled scenes from "L'Aiglon" at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The performance will be given at the Goodman Studio theater.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton Throckmorton are planning a Christmas eve party for about 30 guests, "grown-ups and children from all around the road," according to Mrs. Throckmorton's young daughter, Anne Casselberry. Miss Caryl Casselberry has been home from school for two weeks.

A Christmas celebration to which those who annually are invited always look forward with pleasure is the Tom and Jerry party the Charles Daniel Freys are giving from 11 to 1 next Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Beckwith and their daughter, Miss Jane Beckwith, will entertain at tea and dancing at the Drake on Sunday for Miss Barbara White. Miss White is Dr. and Mrs. Edward William White's debutante daughter.

Gives Brown-Hoffmann Prenuptial Party Dec. 26.

One of the first parties to be given for Miss Caroline Hoffmann and Bradford Brown, whose engagement was announced recently, is a dinner and theater party Miss Rose Dickinson will give on Dec. 26. Miss Dickinson and Miss Hoffmann are cousins. Miss Dickinson will take her guests to see "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Mrs. Frank Brookes Hubachek will give a luncheon at the Skokie Country club on Dec. 26 for her daughter, Miss Marjorie Hubachek, a student at Dana Hall, and about 50 of her friends who were graduated at the Roycemore and North Shore Country Day schools last year. On the 28th Mr. and Mrs. Hubachek will give an informal dinner-dance also at the Skokie, for their son, Frank Jr., who is better known as Bill. He is a junior at New Trier Township High school.

Mrs. Frank Birney of 230 East Delaware place has cards out for an at home from 5 to 7 o'clock on Dec. 31. The especial guests will be Miss Jane Boyce and James H. Oughton Jr., who are to be married on Jan. 24 at St. James' chapel in New York City. They will sail on the 26th for a month's wedding trip in South America.

The special attraction for the younger crowd at the party will be the presence of several members of the Triangle club who will be the guests of Mrs. Birney's son, Frank, a member of the club.

Edwin W. Simses to Give New Year's Eve Supper.

It is so inconvenient for people to get together on Christmas night that Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Sims have decided to have their annual holiday buffet supper on New Year's eve this year. From 50 to 75 guests will attend this informal affair.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herbst and their daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Ruth, who were introduced to society last year, are entertaining at an eggnog party on New Year's eve at their home in Highland Park. Their especial guests will be some of this year's debutantes. Miss Jean Husted, Miss Carolyn Mellinger, Miss Barbara White, Miss Patricia Austin, Miss Shirley Garnett, and Miss Cherry Rae Orr.

A clever invitation in verse received by some of this season's debutantes was sent out by Mrs. B. Botsford Young. The jingle announces that Miss Grace Shumway, Miss Barbara Blossom, Miss Anita Smith, Miss Mary Faith Wilson, and Miss Mardo Pattou will be especial guests at a breakfast at 1 o'clock on Dec. 31 at Mrs. Young's home in Lake Forest. The young people will go to the Winter club for skating after breakfast if there is skating.

Bridge players of the top rank, besides being pretty darn good, are lamentably smug. Most of them feel—and make that feeling irritatingly obvious—that bridge, to them, is an open book whose pages they know by heart.

It is with the keenest delight that, every once in a while, I see these lions have their tails pulled. And if, thru any modest effort of my own, I can assist in these tail-pullings, my pleasure is, of course, intensified. The hand below gave me a field day:

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	2 spades	Pass	Pass
3 clubs	3 spades	Pass	4 spades
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

I was blessed with the South cards. Against me, in the East and West positions, were two nationally known masters. Some readers may doubt East's right to be included in that exalted category, pointing to his three club reopening bid as evidence to the contrary, but this view would be fallacious. At match-point duplicate East was afraid to let me play a two spade contract; he decided [not unnaturally] that if we didn't think we could make a game there was no reason for him to think so, and he might well be able to fulfill a club contract of his own, or drive me beyond my depth. His final penalty double was merely a "face saving" gesture.

West opened the heart ten and I won with the ace. My prospects were not good—one discard on a high club in dummy still would leave me with four losers. There was only one chance—and I grabbed it. At the second trick I led the club eight and let it ride. East won with the jack, collected two heart tricks, and shifted to the diamond king. I won, cashed the spade ace, and entered dummy with a spade. The club king then was led thru East—and he was helpless! Actually, he chose to cover. I ruffed high, reëntered dummy with a trump, and cashed the club queen, looking for West's follow suit card. There it came as per my hope—the ten spot! Dummy's club nine now was as good as gold—and so was my contract.

It would have done East no good to fail to cover the club king. I would have discarded a diamond and then led the club queen thru East. My entire plan of play depended upon finding West with three clubs to the jack or ten.

But all this is anti-climactic. The real point of the hand is that West gave me the contract. He played as 99 out of the 100 supposed world masters would play—he didn't think of the supremely simple matter of covering my club eight with his ten!

Jellied Salad for Christmas Eases Final Rush for Hostess

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A jellied salad often is least bothersome and most attractive for the Christmas dinner. It may be made ahead of time, so that when the time for making the giblet gravy arrives, fussing with salads is eliminated. A large ring mold, star mold, or other jellied salad shape makes a beautiful appearance on a suitable plate or tray when the Christmas feast is under way.

Here are four recipes for jellied salads particularly appropriate for the Christmas meal. They are unusually attractive in appearance and exceptionally delicious.

Jellied Cranberry-Nut Salad.

[Serves 12.]

2 tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatin
1½ cups orange juice
2 cans [each 1 lb. 1 oz.] cranberry sauce, or 4 cups cooked, strained cranberry sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup celery, finely chopped
1 cup nuts, finely chopped

Soften gelatin in ½ cup cold orange juice and dissolve in remaining heated orange juice [1 cup]. Pour the hot mixture over cranberry sauce in a bowl. Beat with rotary beater to a soft, smooth mass. Chill until the gelatin begains to thicken, then add salt, celery, and nuts. Turn into a ring or star mold, which has been rinsed with cold water, and chill until firm. To serve, turn out on a plate lined with chicory or watercress. Serve whipped cream-mayonnaise separately.

Claret Wine Salad.

[Serves six.]

1 cup claret wine
1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup sliced fresh or canned pears

Add wine to pears and let stand 15 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool and add pears and wine. Chill until the mixture begins to thicken. Turn into a cold, wet mold and chill until firm. Serve with a lemon cream salad dressing.

Lemon Fruit Gelatin Ring.

[Serves eight.]

2 tablespoons plain, unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1¾ cups boiling water
⅓ cup lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup orange segments, membrane removed
1 cup seeded grapes
½ cup sliced fresh pears

Soak gelatin for 5 minutes in cold water, dissolve in boiling water. Add lemon juice, sugar, and salt and chill until the salad starts to thicken. Add fruit, drained of juice. Turn into cold, wet mold and chill until firm. Turn out on salad greens and serve with lemon honey dressing or whipped cream-mayonnaise.

Other fruits may be substituted for those mentioned. Use 2½ cups in all. Orange juice may be substituted for a part of the water, if desired.

Peach Nectar Salad.

[Serves six.]

1 can peach nectar
¼ cup cold water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon plain, unflavored gelatin
¼ cup chopped ripe olives
¼ cup chopped cucumber
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle

Combine liquids and salt. Soak gelatin for 5 minutes in ¼ cup of this mixture. Heat remainder to boiling point and dissolve gelatin in it. Chill until the salad begins to thicken. Add other ingredients, pour into cold, wet mold and chill until firm.

HAWKS LOSE 12TH IN ROW TO BRUINS, 4 TO 2

SNEAD RALLIES WITH 64; WINS IN MIAMI OPEN

Nelson Falters, but Gets Vardon Cup.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 17 (AP).—Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., came from behind with a six under par 64 today to win the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament with a 72 hole total of 271.

That total, nine under par figures for the 72 holes, beat out Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Boston by two strokes. McSpaden rallied on the final nine for a 67 and 273.

Ted Williamson of Fort Wayne, Ind. scored his second consecutive 69 and moved into third place at 276. Ky Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., finished fourth with a fourth round 69 and a 277 total.

Nelson Champion of Year.

Fifth place, however, won him the Harry Vardon trophy, emblematic of the year's professional golfing supremacy. The 19 points he collected put him far ahead of Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion, whose final 71 gave him 282 and a 14th place tie. Nelson's Vardon total was 473 to Picard's 461.

Picard, however, still managed to finish as the year's leading money winner in professional golf with a total of $10,303, altho he won only one today. Snead finished second with winnings of $9,712, including the $2,500 purse that went with today's victory. He moved ahead of Ralph Guldahl, who finished in a tie for 11th place today and nearly was overtaken by Nelson in the 1939 prize aggregates. Guldahl won $9,477, Nelson $9,144.

Snead Third in Vardon Race.

Snead also passed Guldahl in the final Vardon trophy point standings to take third place behind Nelson and Picard. Snead's Vardon rating was 461 points to 334 for Guldahl.

Dick Metz of Chicago placed fifth in both money winnings and the Vardon race. He earned $8,675 and scored 281 points in the trophy rating.

Snead, who trailed Nelson by two strokes going into the final round, started out today with a 31, four under par, to forge ahead of the field at 63 holes, but he still had to hold it out to the last putt to beat Ted McSpaden for the $2,500 first prize.

McSpaden Finishes in 31.

McSpaden, after apparently blowing himself out of the running with a final nine 36 today, came back in 31 to earn the $1,250 runner-up purse.

Williamson, a dark horse, collected $1,000 for finishing third.

Snead, the slugger, staging a comeback after recovering from a back ailment, again installed himself as the scourge of the professional ranks. Winner of this tournament with a record 267 two years ago, he equaled the course record with his 64 after scoring 68, 72 and 67 on his first three rounds.

Scores Eagle Deuce.

Snead sent the gallery of 3,000 into ecstacy on the sixth hole when his iron shot approach hit the pin half way up and dropped into the cup for an eagle two. At the ninth his approach stopped within three feet of the cup.

Jamming the ball with all his old-time vigor, Snead picked up his sixth stroke with an eight foot putt on the 13th and parred the final three holes. He had required a bogey four on the fourth hole.

Nelson played miserable golf on his opening nine with four bogeys for 39, but came home in 34, one below par.

A Cup Full of Christmas Cheer

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Sammy Snead is ready for the last minute shopping rush this week. Yesterday he won the silver trophy emblematic of the $10,000 Miami open golf championship and reached inside the cup to pull out first place prize money—a check for $2,500. Beside Snead stands Harold (Jug) McSpaden, last year's winner, who finished second, two strokes behind Snead's 271, and won second prize of $1,250.

These teams will meet De Paul and Loyola, respectively, in the first of the program of nine double headers sponsored by the Chicago universities, as host teams, and the Chicago Intercollegiate Basketball association whose co-directors are Judge John A. Sbarbaro and Arthur Morse.

Inaugurated last year, and admirably conducted, the games were immediately a success with Chicago's basketball fans, many of whom have no more direct interest in the success of De Paul and Loyola than have the metropolitan thousands who annually cheer for Notre Dame. Certainly these Chicagoans now have been rewarded by an opening card of highest merit as well as intersectional importance.

Wenskus Is Loyola Veteran.

The first game at 8:15 tonight brings together the Scots and Loyola and each will be represented by an unseasoned team. Since the Ramblers have only one regular, Capt. George Wenskus, from the quintet which went undefeated last year in the regular season and lost only to Long Island university in the finals of the New York championship tournament, Loyola is probably the under-dog, altho the team already has surprised its supporters.

Carnegie still has its scoring punch from last season in Capt. Bob Stark and Johnny Burke. Stark led the Eastern Intercollegiate conference last year with 146 points.

A Hoosier Leads U. S. C.

Southern California opens its five game transcontinental trip in the Coliseum tonight. Coach Sam Barry, one time University of Iowa coach, has a scoring ace in Ralph Vaughn of Frankfort, Ind., who led the southern division of the Pacific Coast conference last year with 180 points. Except for Jack Lippert, junior guard who replaces last year's captain, the Trojans will open with a veteran quintet.

De Paul has lost Bob Neu, great scoring player, whose 332 points last year is a record for the Blue Demons, but Coach Tom Haggerty already has developed an exceptional quintet as proved by De Paul's victory over Purdue. Starting lineups:

ILLINI VS. PRINCETON

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 17 [Special].—Princeton's undefeated basketball team which will play Illinois here tomorrow night arrived today from Toledo where it won its fourth straight victory by defeating the University of Toledo, 52 to 38, Saturday night.

Coach Franklin C. Cappon's Tigers previously had defeated Lehigh, Rutgers, and Colgate.

Illinois' starting lineup probably will be the same as used against Carleton except that Coach Mills may select Colin Handlon instead of Bob Richmond at guard. Probable starting lineups:

Evans	F	Winston
Wukovits	C	Busse

Newark Farm of Bears Wins Title Play-off

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 [Special].—Before 16,000 fans, the largest crowd ever to witness a pro football contest here, the Newark Bears, farm team of the Chicago Bears, rallied this afternoon to defeat the Paterson Panthers, 27 to 7, and capture the American Football association championship.

Alert and aggressive after slipping behind early in the second period, Newark proceeded to take full advantage of several opportunities, and scored three times in the second half.

Resume Hearing on Thomas' Fake Battles Today

The investigation by the Illinois Athletic commission and the attorney general's office into the charges published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Oct. 30, 1939 that Harry Thomas' fights with Max Schmeling and Tony Galento were pre-arranged and faked will be resumed this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the commission offices.

Nate Lewis, one time manager of Thomas, who it was charged, arranged the fake fight with Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, in a Chicago hotel in October, 1937, will appear before the commission today. Lewis is expected to deny the charge as he did in a story printed in THE TRIBUNE simultaneously with Thomas' confession.

Today's hearing will be conducted by Edwin T. Breen, first assistant attorney general, and the commissioners, Chairman Joe Triner, J. R. Fitzpatrick and Sheldon Clark.

FENWICK, LOYOLA, LEO AND ST. RITA WIN IN TOURNEY

Play Semi-Finals Tonight in St. George Gym.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Fenwick will meet Leo and Loyola will encounter St. Rita tonight in the semifinals of the sixth annual St. George invitational basketball tournament in St. George gym, Evanston.

Four games yesterday afternoon and last night reduced the field to these four survivors. After Leo had disposed of St. Michael, 39 to 23, and Fenwick had made a strong finish to beat St. George, 32 to 27, in the afternoon engagements, Loyola took the floor to defeat De La Salle, 31 to 20, in the first of the evening games. Then St. Rita topped off the day's program by sweeping thru St. Patrick's of Kankakee, 46 to 38.

St. Rita Starts Fast.

St. Rita's big, fast, and aggressive team had to travel at top speed all the way to score its victory. St. Rita players got away to an exceptionally good start, flipping in six points before their adversaries could get going. At one stage of the second quarter they seemed about to make a runaway of it, drawing out to a 22 to 11 lead.

The boys from Kankakee kept pegging away, however, and drew up to within five points of their rivals in the third period. The St. Rita players withstood the pressure, however, and managed to defend their margin to the final gun.

Ivers Gets Six Goals.

Bill Ivers, St. Rita guard, showed himself particularly adept at slinging in short ones from tricky angles. He scored six baskets and three free throws. Bill Sims, another St. Rita guard, made a number of timely goals from quite a way down the floor.

Loyola had a much easier time of it in eliminating De La Salle. The north side boys stepped away to a 22 to 9 lead at the half and made numerous substitutions thereafter, four of their players going out on personal fouls. At no stage of the game did De La Salle threaten seriously.

The closest game of the quarter finals was the afternoon engagement between Fenwick and St. George. The Oak Park boys took an early lead, but relinquished it to their hosts at the end of the first half, trailing 13 to 11.

Fenwick Comes from Behind.

All thru the third period the teams fought on almost even terms. Going thru the final quarter St. George was still ahead, 22 to 21. Then the Oak Parkers gradually drew away, but they never did have a chance to ease up.

Jack Payette, Fenwick forward, was one of the highly important factors in his team's victory. He made eight baskets and three free throws, five of those field goals coming in the last half.

St. Michael was no match for Leo in the first of the afternoon games. Stan Patrick, Leo center, gave the best scoring exhibition of the tournament, running up 22 points on 10 field goals and two free throws.

TWO GOALS IN FINAL PERIOD BREAK 2-2 TIE

Chicagoans Fail to Hold Leads.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The largest crowd of the National Hockey league season, 17,264, last night saw the Blackhawks lead the Boston Bruins, 1 to 0 and 2 to 1, but in the end it was the same old story. The champions won their 3d of the season and their 12th in a row from the Hawks, 4 to 2.

Cully Dahlstrom scored early in the first period, the Bruins tied it midway in the period, and Bill Carse put the Chicagoans ahead in the 16th minute of the opening session.

A goal by Herbie Cain midway in the second period put them even again and the teams went into the final period with two goals each.

Gordon Pettinger broke the tie a third of the way thru the final period and Flash Hollet fattened the margin with a solo display going into the closing five minutes.

It Isn't a Jinx.

The champion's victory scarcely could be blamed on any jinx they have enjoyed over the Hawks in their string of a dozen successive games. They played hard and brilliantly. Not the least brilliant was Goalie Frank Brimsek, who never has seen the Hawks win. The two goals, however, may have shocked Frankie a bit. They were the 9th and 10th scored on him in 11 games.

The first goal of the evening put the Hawks ahead in 3:26 of the opening period. Johnny Gottselig took the puck over the blue line, several feet from the left boards and shoved it to Dahlstrom. Cully went several glides toward the cage, then shoveled the puck straight at Brimsek. The spade technique seemed to astound the great young goalie and the disk whirled between his heels. Gottselig won an assist on the play.

Bruins Tie It Up.

The Bruins tied it up in 8:20 of the first period when Art Jackson, ably assisted by Red Hamill and Dit Clapper, scored. Des Smith was locked up on a tripping penalty and the Bruins moved up. The Hawks were about to clear the puck from their defense zone when Clapper stopped it an inch short of the blue line. Dit passed straight forward to Hamill, who in turn kept the goalward nudge going with a short pass to Jackson. Jackson, directly on top of Mike Karakas, had little difficulty beating the Hawk goalie.

The 1 to 1 tie was broken by the Hawks in 15:58 of the first period. George Allen and Ab Demarco had carried the rubber to Carse on the left boards, where Carse found it in a semi wild state. He picked it up on his stick, plunged several strides toward the cage, then cut loose with a hard, oblique shot on which Brimsek didn't have time to move. Allen and Demarco generously were given assists.

Hockey At Its Best.

The second period produced some of the finest and most exciting hockey in several seasons, despite the painful fact the net of same was a Bruin goal, which gave the Bostons a 2 to 2 tie. Thrice before the Bruin goal Hawk players had free paths to the Boston cage on breakaways. Gottseling, than Earl Seibert, back to action after eight games' absence, and finally Doug Bentley and Mush March bore down on Brimsek, only to have their close-in efforts turned down by the sprightly Boston goalie.

After standing off some threats themselves, the Hawks lost out because of a loose skating foray. Defense Man Jack Portland got the puck in his own defense zone and skated unchallenged, and a mile a minute, along his right boards, then passed across the mouth of the cage to Cain, who beat Karakas with a slanter. The time was 11:17.

The Bruins went ahead for the first time when Pettinger scored in 6:29 of the third period. Jackson picked up the rubber on neutral ice and he, Hollet, and Pettinger launched a zigzag attack which terminated when Pettinger jabbed home the goal. Then came Hollet's bounding solo for the final goal at 15:35.

MAYOR TO CATCH UP ON HIS PREP GRIDIRON DINNERS

At Mount Carmel Tonight, Fenger Tomorrow.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Mayor Kelly, who this season has made as many rounds of high school banquets as a college football coach, catches up with Mount Carmel and Fenger, the two elevens which played in Chicago's All-City game, tonight and tomorrow night. The mayor will appear at Mount Carmel's annual dinner in the Palmer House tonight, and tomorrow will deliver a brief talk before Donald Griffin and his Fenger teammates in Thomas C. Hill auditorium, 112th street and Wallace avenue.

More than 1,500 are expected to gather in the Palmer House to honor the Catholic league champions. In addition to Mayor Kelly, No. 1 rooter in the thrilling 13 to 13 game between Mount Carmel and Fenger three weeks ago, the speakers will include the Most Reverend Bernard J. Sheil, administrator for the Chicago archdiocese; Elmer Layden, University of Notre Dame football coach; Judge Michael L. Igoe, Congressman Raymond McKeough, and the Rev. Theodore J. Hatton, Mount Carmel principal.

Speakers at Fenger.

At Fenger's banquet Mayor Kelly will be assisted by James B. McCahey, president of the school board; Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools; Ald. Arthur G. Lindell, and Sheldon W. Govier, clerk of the Appellate court. Griffin, for two years the leading prep ball carrier in the Chicago district, and his teammates will be introduced by Coach Charles Palmer. The dinner was arranged by the Roseland post of the American Legion and the Fenger Football Fathers club.

Wally Fromhart, who directed Mount Carmel to two Catholic league championships in his three years as head coach; the Rev. Paschal Baier, athletic director; Fred Mundee, assistant coach, and Capt. Johnny Andretich also will speak at the champions' dinner. Bob Elson, W-G-N sports announcer, will be toastmaster. School officials announced yesterday that reservations still could be made by calling Fairfax 1020.

Warns Mount Carmel Players.

Fromhart warned his players to refrain from second helpings at the banquet because he will order a lengthy workout tomorrow afternoon in Jackson park in preparation for the post-season game in West Palm Beach, Fla., on Dec. 30. Coaches Fromhart and Mundee will leave Chicago with a squad of 25 players on Dec. 27.

The coaches were elated to learn that the game would be played at night. They feared the players during their brief stay would not be acclimated and would tire easily under the hot sun. Their chance to win from the southern All-Star eleven, composed of seniors from three high schools in Palm Beach county, will be helped considerably in the night air. Anderson field in West Palm Beach, where the game will be played, is equipped with a modern lighting system and has a seating capacity of 5,000.

Sparta Wins from Swedes in Soccer, 2-0

BY OFFSIDE.

The Spartas defeated the Swedish-Americans, 2 to 0, yesterday afternoon in a National cup soccer match in the Sparta stadium before a crowd of 5,000. The Spartas opened the scoring about 12 minutes after the first half started when Frank Trimmell recovered Jimmy MacDermott's blocked shot and drove the ball into the net.

The Swedes missed several good chances to tie the score before the half ended. Early in the second period MacDermott and Trimmell were kept from scoring by good saves on the part of Manne Holmes, Swedes' goalie.

The Spartas scored their second goal about two minutes before the game ended when MacDermott slipped thru to pass to Trimmell who gave Holmes no chance to save with a high shot from 15 yards out.

Bears Lead in 8 Departments of Pro Play

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Chicago's Bears took charge of practically every offensive department thru the 1939 National Football league season, official statistics reveal.

The Bears led in eight departments of play, four more than the Washington Redskins, who for the second consecutive year were runners-up in team averages with margins in four branches.

Tremendous offensive power, in which rookies as well as veterans were consistent producers, enabled the Bears to score the most touchdowns, 42; gain the most yards, surpass other teams in rushing and in passing; score the most points, kick the most extra points, and produce the most touchdowns by rushing. The Bears also led the league in recovering opponents' fumbles.

Giants' Defense Best.

For the second successive year the New York Giants, eastern division champions, led in pass interceptions and least number of points allowed. It is ironical, speaking of pass interceptions, that the Giants should have seen two of their scoring chances in the championship playoff with Green Bay thwarted by this medium. Charlie Brock, the Packers' rookie center, snatched two Giant passes at critical moments to halt menacing advances.

The statistics reveal a gradual disappearance of the lateral pass from the professional game, which has as its greatest appeal the open tactics sometimes known as razzle dazzle. The league average in 1938 was seven laterals, a sharp decline from 1937, against four for 1939. Some coaches have a rule against the lateral pass. Others merely discourage its use.

Bear Laterals Boomerang.

The Bears lost twenty yards on lateral passes in eleven games and Brooklyn had a deficit of four yards, while Green Bay did not attempt a single lateral in its march to the championship. New York and Washington, the outstanding teams in the eastern division, only attempted one lateral apiece. It is noteworthy, also, that of the teams which attempted laterals all had 100 per cent completions except Philadelphia. The Eagles connected on only five out of eight.

League averages were higher in 17 departments. A résumé of leaders in each division of play, with comparative averages, follows:

DI RE DEFEATS CANNON; KEEPS HANDBALL TITLE

George Di Re of the Chicago Towers club, 31 year old employé of a realty company, won the Central A. A. U. city singles handball championship for the second consecutive year yesterday in the Madison Athletic club. He again beat Paddy Cannon, also of the Towers club, in the finals, this time by scores of 21-10 and 21-12.

Towers club entrants made a clean sweep of the first three places, third going to Bob Kendler, who defeated Bob Quinn, fire department titleholder, 14-21, 21-20, 21-2.

SONJA HENIE AND SKATE COMPANY TO ARRIVE TODAY

Sonja Henie, the Norwegian lass who has woven beauty and ability to skate into a motion picture career of magnitude, brings her 1940 Hollywood ice revue to Chicago this afternoon. The company, including 100 skaters and a 28 piece symphony orchestra will arrive at the Union station at 3:30 o'clock.

Coming to Chicago from a triumph in Houston, Tex., the troupe will further perfect routines in a series of workouts in the Stadium.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed GLIDER—a special cream for daily shavers. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, Glider helps keep your skin smooth all day. Glider is the result of nearly 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations.

FREE—Tube of Glider. Send name, address today. The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. CT-67, Glastonbury, Conn.

Duck Season Comments Fall Thick and Fast

BY BOB BECKER.

Reports from Arkansas about the few ducks that have reached that state and the recent communication from R. E. Watrous of Evanston, which appeared in this department, on the poor hunting in Illinois apparently are keeping many duck hunters from thinking wholly about Santa Claus, judging by the letters which are coming to us from the waterfowl hunting fraternity.

Some of the letters tell of big flocks of ducks still in Michigan and Minnesota. Others inform us about the tremendous number of birds still on the Mississippi. Then there are letters that accuse places along the Illinois of feeding illegally during the past season so that politicians could enjoy good shooting!

Mr. Watrous Gets Answered.

Mr. Watrous' recent reference to the corn along the Illinois river and the way the ducks are getting it [without baiting] brings the following written retort from H. Hollenbach of Chicago:

"Chances are that Mr. Watrous donates to Ducks Unlimited. Like every one else he likes to see the duck population in the millions, but he hates the painful process of arriving at that point. You can't eat your cake and have it. In the old days any scissorbill could kill a limit of ducks most anywhere they were being fed. Today, no feed, no scissorbill, but the real hunters are having plenty of fun.

Successful Feeding Out.

"Successful feeding is definitely out, even if the government would allow it. And I believe that even if you baited a place you could not get more than one or two shots a season. There are too many cornfields where there is no shooting, which makes easy picking for the ducks, besides a little gravel on the side.

"Mr. Watrous should resign himself to the fact that duck shooting is just like love — you can't do anything about it."

If hunters in the southern zone are wondering where the ducks are, Frank P. Lee of Stephenson, Mich. [above Menominee], and L. J. B. Alleman of Minnesota City, Minn., can furnish evidence on the situation. Alleman says that there are thousands of ducks still in Minnesota, due to the mild weather. A year ago at this time everything was frozen solid up there.

DiMAGGIO WINS BATTING CROWN BY 21 POINTS

Dethrones Jimmy Foxx, Home Run King.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Joe DiMaggio, who plays ball with the world champion New York Yankees, is the American league's batting champion for the 1939 season. This was suspected right along, but it's official now. The averages were made public yesterday.

The Italian lad who only a few years ago took a running jump off the San Francisco fish wharf and landed in the Yankee stadium, annoyed enemy pitchers to the tune of .381 during the recent championship race, the best mark since 1936 when Luke Appling of the White Sox hit .388 to win the title.

DiMaggio's .381 beat out the 1938 leader, Jimmy Foxx of Boston, but Foxx dropped no farther than second place with .360. Next in line was the .338 turned in by Bob Johnson, the Athletic outfielder whom Connie Mack has refused to trade.

Foxx Leads in Homers.

Foxx derived some consolation in the home run column. The Red Sox first baseman showed the way in this department with a total of 35, five more than DiMaggio. Between this pair was Hank Greenberg, the lanky Tiger first baseman, who batted 33 drives into the seats. This represented quite a shrinkage for Hank, who in 1938 garnered an imposing total of 58 homers. But the Yanks as a whole hit 166 homers to 124 by both Boston and Detroit.

Among those who did things in a big way with the bat was a newcomer—Ted Williams of Boston. The Coast league graduate led in total bases with 344. He drove out 31 homers. As a hitter he was seventh with .327, two points behind Red Rolfe of the Yanks and the same distance ahead of Ken Keltner, the Cleveland Indians' infielder. Williams' average, along with that of Foxx, helps to explain why the Red Sox led the Yankees, .291 to .287. But the Yanks won the pennant by 17 games over the second place Bostons. The Yanks were sixth as team hitters in 1938.

Case Steals 51 Bases.

The league's base stealing for the year was attended to almost exclusively by George Case of the Washington Senators. Case stole 51 times, but his larceny apparently wasn't of much value to his team. It finished sixth. His activity in this respect was so extensive that he almost doubled the total of 1938's No. 1 burglar, Frankie Crosetti of the Yanks, who had 27. The No. 2 burglars for 1939 were Mike Kreevich of the White Sox and Pete Fox of the Tigers. Each chalked up 23. Kreevich was tops as a sacrifice artist with 22.

As usual the Yanks were involved in various batting records. In one game at St. Louis they hit and scored in every inning, equaling a former mark. In a double header at Philadelphia they hit a new high with eight homers in the first game and five in the second for a record which eclipsed their 11 in a bargain bill in 1936. In 10 consecutive games from Aug. 12 to 22 they hit 22 homers, bettering an earlier 10 game mark of 20.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

REVEAL SCHEME OF MORGENTHAU TO PREVENT WAR

Wanted America to Buy Essentials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. hoped to prevent war in Europe by preventing essential war materials from getting into the hands of "aggressor" nations, high official sources revealed tonight.

Morgenthau's plan was for the United States, in coöperation with Great Britain and soviet Russia, to buy up all available supplies of such goods as copper, rubber, cotton, manganese, oil, and nickel. Investigation by Harry D. White, director of monetary research at the treasury, showed that the scheme would cost the United States about $100,000,000 a month and it was abandoned as too costly.

Embargo Plan Dropped.

An alternative plan of embargoes by the three principal owners of these war needs was dropped because one of these countries—Russia, which is now engaged in a war of its own—could not be relied upon to coöperate.

The story of how New Deal planners and administration experts sought to prepare the nation for the outbreak of the oncoming war was revealed by these sources, who wished to remain unidentified.

It was disclosed that Morgenthau threatened Great Britain and France with seizure of all French and British funds in this country if these nations did not act to protect American investors from sudden liquidation of foreign investments in American securities.

Ready to Close Markets.

Justice William O. Douglas, then chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, had ready a blanket order for closing all securities exchanges in this country. Stocks, however, instead of going into a nosedive at the outbreak of war, rose, and the order was never used.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had a "persuasive" order ready for use to close commodity markets if price movements threatened to get out of control.

Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve board chairman, arranged secret authority to spend $500,000,000 to maintain the price of United States government bonds.

Most of the action revolved about the United States treasury where a series of conferences was held from March, after Hitler completed the annexation of Czecho-Slovakia, until August, when the Polish situation became acute.

Results of Conferences.

The subjects and results of some of these conferences were as follows:

MARCH 17—Morgenthau called W. W. Butterworth, second secretary of the American embassy in London, for information on what action New York banks were ta plans as passed along by Butterworth in London. All of these were instituted after the outbreak of war. They included the registering of all British holdings; temporary closing of stock exchanges and banks; announcement by the Bank of England of exchange rates for sterling.

Morgenthau said that these plans plans were confidential but that similar assurances of security registration from other possible belligerents would protect American securities markets from uncontroled foreign liquidation. He suggested that the tripartite monetary control agreement mechanism might be used to get such assurances without revealing British plans.

Hints First, Then Threatens.

APRIL 12—A conference was called in Morgenthau's office to discuss a communication to be sent the "tripartite countries" [France, England, and the United States]. In discussing it with his advisers Morgenthau suggested that the communication should state that the United States government has provided a haven of refuge for funds seeking investment and security, and that it hopes it can continue to do so.

Morgenthau elaborated on the "hint" at a later conference with the interdepartmental committee, asserting that not only can this country prohibit export of dollars but under the 1933 banking act it can prohibit payments by banks out of certain accounts, which he referred to as "freezing their balances."

Head-Nodding Session.

APRIL 13—George L. Harrison, president of the New York Federal Reserve bank, was called down from New York for another general meeting in Morgenthau's office. Edward Bartlett, vice president of the New York Stock exchange, was brought into the latter part of the meeting. Morgenthau explained to Harrison what the committee was trying to do and that every one wanted to keep the markets open in event of war in Europe. Every one agreed upon "business as usual" in a head-nodding session.

Bartlett was asked what program the exchange had in mind in case of emergency. It is understood that Bartlett replied it was considering the use of a 10 per cent fluctuation scheme.

Agree Not to Sell Governments.

At a later meeting that day Harrison told of a plan he had in mind for forming an advisory committee of bankers and said that New York banks had agreed that they would not sell government bonds in event of war. The proposed advisory group later was formed.

Eccles reported that the reserve board, acting as the open market committee had authorized the purchase of government bonds by the executive committee up to 500 million dollars. The committee actually bought 450 million in governments during the September crisis when bonds slumped and outlying banks sold.

APRIL 15—Last of the big April meetings was held. Eccles summarized the arrangements for buying bonds, plus the discount rate extension. Jerome Frank, it is understood, reported that the markets ought to be kept open but he did not think much of the ideas on price limitations. Any arrangement with foreign governments to control liquidations would reduce the possibility of disturbance, he said. But Lockhead warned against relying too heavily on such cooperation.

British Seek Aid.

The British had asked if there were any legal powers here that would enable the United States to help them in the liquidation of securities. Some one in the administration suggested that the United States could make a loan to a British corporation or to an American corporation, controled by Americans. Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, was consulted on this. The decision which came later was that legally they were possible but as a matter of policy were "out of the window."

MAY 9—Carl Gray, retired president of the Union Pacific, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, reported to Morgenthau that existing equipment could handle additional traffic on the railroads provided that cars and locomotives now awaiting repairs are put into serviceable condition. They said that the Interstate Commerce commission with its present powers could grant the necessary authority to prevent piling up of freight. That night Gray died of a heart attack at a local hotel.

AUG. 2.—Procurement division reported to Morgenthau that Lord Riverdale and Sir Owen Chalkley had called to discuss its functional organization because they had to consider how the British would handle their purchases here.

WALLACE RULE OF CREDIT FOUGHT BY FARM GROUPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP).—E. T. Benson, secretary of the National Coöperative council, said today that his group and other farm organizations would appeal to congress to override any order giving Secretary Wallace complete control of the Farm Credit administration. He said that these groups were prepared to carry the issue to the voters in the 1940 presidential campaign "if necessary."

Some officials of the department of agriculture have predicted that control of the FCA would be transferred to Wallace after President Roosevelt returns to Washington from a weekend visit to Hyde Park, N. Y.

Authoritative sources say that Wallace has insisted that he be given authority to direct the credit agency because of his dissatisfaction with present policies. These sources add that if the transfer is made it will involve the resignation of the FCA governor, F. F. Hill, and his replacement by Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the agriculture department's division of marketing and regulatory work.

Aircraft Maker to Pay $400,000 Worker Bonus

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP).—The North American Aviation plant management informed employés today they would receive a $400,000 Christmas bonus. President J. H. Kindelberger said employés hired before last Jan. 1 would get three weeks' wages. Those hired since then will receive sums ranging down to $10 each.

Jewel Tea's Sales Mount 10.16 Per Cent Above 1938

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales of $2,083,908 for the four weeks ended Dec. 2, or 10.16 more than in the corresponding weeks of 1938. Sales for 48 weeks totaled $22,690,262, against $21,804,443, a gain of 4.06 per cent.

STOCKS SWING NARROWLY, BUT CLIMB IN WEEK

Many Influences Causes of Hesitancy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 17.—Stocks moved in a tightly restricted area last week. The market had range of less than three points and finished the week on a fractionally higher plane.

There was little change in the situation which has surrounded the market since the war boom faded in September. Foreign selling, uncertainty over the duration of the war, the forthcoming presidential campaign, and predictions of a business letdown in the early months of the new year all have been singled out by observers as prime reasons for the hesitancy of traders. Last week, in addition, there was a number of realizing sales for tax purposes.

Oil Shares Irregular.

Oil shares were irregular. This was believed to reflect the rise in gasoline inventories. Metal shares were sold when copper failed to register improvement similar to that in other commodities.

Both the common and preferred issues of the Chicago and North Western railway dropped to new lows on the news of the interstate commerce commission's recommendation for reorganization of the road, which would wipe out the equity of both classes of stockholders.

Climax Molybdenum dropped seven points Friday when the administration added molybdenum to the list of items on the moral embargo list against aggressor nations.

Advance on Wednesday.

Stocks had one of their best days in recent weeks on Wednesday when the list rallied 1 to 3 points as traders noted the strength in the commodity market. War news coupled with drouth conditions in some areas carried futures of leading staples to new highs, but the upward trend was interrupted by selling.

Store issues, steels, and miscellaneous manufacturing issues turned in the best performances for the week. A relatively high level of business has helped maintain the market in these issues, in the opinion of observers, even tho there has been some seasonal tapering off in the last few days.

Graf Spee Scuttled at Montevideo on Hitler's Order—Zoo's Denizens Enjoy Springlike Day
